Locke Holds Up Bill to Cut Police Work-Week

WITHHOLDS HIS O. K. TO STUDY SURPRISE ACT

Council Passes Measure by 7-2 Vote; Bates Holds It Would 'Cripple' Force.

GIVES EVERY 6TH DAY OFF

Plan Would Reduce Number on Duty at Time When More Are Sought, Shultz Protests.

Mayor William J. Locke today held up approval of a surprise ordinance, passed last night by city council that would reduce the work-week for city policemen.

The measure was approved by a vote of 7 to 2 over the protests of Police Chief Meade K. Bates, who charged that passage would "seriously cripple" the police force.

It provides that policemen be given every sixth day off instead of every eighth day as provided in the existing ordinance. Council's finance committee turned down a request for more policemen when it drafted the appropriation ordinance last month.

Opposition to the legislation, which was sponsored by Councilman-at-large Philip Smith, was voiced by Republican Councilmen C. N. Shultz and George C. Kyle who cast the negative votes.

Allowed 10 Days.

Locke said this morning that he intended to exercise his executive prerogative which allows him 10 days in which to attach his signature, veto it or leave it become a law without his signature.

"I want to study the measure to see what is behind this particular piece of legislation," he said, pointing out that it appeared inconsistent on the part of council to approve a measure that would cut the working force when additional patrolmen were badly needed.

"I have confidence in council's judgment and I would like to learn more about what is expected in the way of bolstering the force before signing the ordinance," he added.

Smith, chairman of council's

50 Stores to Join Friday, Saturday In Bargain Days

One of the most important merchandising events on the calendar of Mansfield's retail merchants—the mid-winter Community Bargain days—is set for Friday and Saturday.

Fifty retail stores in the downtown district will take part in the event, offering not only winter merchandise, but the first of the new spring wares.

Community Bargain days were started in 1927 and are held twice each year under the sponsorship of the Retail Merchants association.

The participating stores will be marked with yellow bargain day pennants and banners that will be displayed in their windows. Out-of-town shoppers may have parking immunity for their cars by clipping the coupon which will be published in tomorrow's edition of The News-Journal and placing it on the windshield.

Some idea of the bargains offered may be had by reading the special Bargain Days section which will appear in Thursday's issue of The News-Journal.

Confesses He Killed Ohioan With Hammer

Jealousy Seen In Death of Rail Telegrapher at Bellefontaine.

(By International News Service)

BELLEFONTAINE — Ascribing jealousy over a woman 32 years his senior as the motive, Prosecutor J. Ewing Smith announced today that an 18-year-old roomer, Donald Slater, has confessed slaying his landlady's husband, Fred Jenkins, 56.

First degree murder charges will be filed against Slater and accessory charges will be lodged against the widow, Mrs. Minnie Jenkins, 50, and her son, Merlin, 18, the prosecutor declared.

Smith asserted that young Slater and Mrs. Jenkins had been "carrying on an affair." The body of Jenkins, a railroad telegrapher, was found near Dayton Saturday night. He had been bludgeoned to death and his body dumped beside a highway.

Slater and Merlin Jenkins attended Miami university together last fall, leaving after one semester. Since then Slater has roomed in the Jenkins home at Huntsville, near Bellefontaine.

According to the prosecutor, the youth confessed that he obtained a hammer from a restaurant operated by Mrs. Jenkins, then went to the residence and struck the husband on the head while he was asleep.

Left Car Near Dayton.

Loading the body into a car, Slater drove to a point near Miamisburg in the vicinity of Dayton and left it beside the road. The deed, Smith charged, was done with the "full knowledge" of Mrs. Jenkins and her son, Merlin.

Ned Blair, a farm laborer, discovered the body, clad only in undergarments. Its frozen condition prevented Coroner R. D. Snyder from performing a post-mortem examination, but he found that death resulted from a blow which shattered the skull.

Until yesterday the victim had remained unidentified. Then Mrs.

WHITE IN RACE

Norwalk Congressman Out for G. O. P. Senate Nomination.

NORWALK, O. —(AP)— Rep. Dudley A. White joined Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland today in the race for the Ohio Republican senatorial nomination.

The Norwalk congressman announced his candidacy on the issue of "saving our system of the orderly constitutional government from the world tide of dictatorship and one-man rule" and a program to engender "honest pay-as-you-go prosperity."

White revealed his plans last night in an address before the Huron County McKinley club.

Senator Vic Donahey, a Democrat, is expected to seek re-election.

Urging "common sense" federal spending, White declared "if representative government is to be maintained, extravagant waste and rampant political spoils must be rooted out of our federal administration."

Puts Plan to Correct 5,400 House Numbers Up to Council

Correction of an estimated 5,400 house numbers in Mansfield was left up to council today by George Berg, chairman of the street committee. Berg dumped the problem into council's lap last night with recommendations for an immediate change.

He submitted a field survey made last year by WPA, showing the location of the numbers to be changed and asked council to meet with the street committee to work out a plan of changing the markings.

In addition to the number correction, Berg also recommended that a new addressing machine be purchased for the water department and that the billing be redistricted.

His proposal calls for a new electric machine to replace a 14-year-old hand operated machine now in use. Redistricting the billing from east and west of Main street to north and south of Park avenue, he said, was recommended by Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the waterworks in order to even up the accounts.

Charles Anglin, bookkeeper in the waterworks office, told council it would be economy to purchase the new machine at the time any number changes were made, explaining that number changes would involve making new address plates. He said the redistricting could also be affected at the same time.

Anglin said by changing the billing north and south of Park avenue it would distribute the 12,000 accounts almost evenly. There are now 8,500 accounts west of Main street and 3,500 on the east side.

They Didn't Have Much To Do

It kept the 546 precinct workers in the county yesterday busy trying to look busy on the lightest election on record. The cameraman caught this group at precinct D of the First ward and at least three insisted on looking busy. The law required a "full house" at all precincts in the district. From left to right around the table they are Mrs. J. Earl Ports, Mrs. Bessie M. Hughes, B. O. Conn, C. F. Lantz, Harry F. Bell, and Mrs. N. A. Pluck.

BUILDING CODE PLEA RENEWED

Lengthy Proposal Submitted by Building Trades Turned Over to Council Group.

A renewed request for the adoption of a building code to cover building construction in Mansfield was in the hands of a special council committee today.

The voluminous proposal, submitted by the Mansfield Building Trades Council was referred to a special committee last night by Council President Howard G. Miller.

Miller named Russell D. Porch, who headed a committee about three years ago when the Chamber of Commerce first submitted a code, as chairman.

Other members of the committee are George C. Kyle and Arthur L. Croak, along with Mayor William J. Locke and City Solicitor Marion D. Ward.

Dealing with the construction of all buildings, the proposal would establish a new city department under a superintendent of buildings.

It also provides for setting up a board of appeals, clerks and field inspectors to invoke the code and carry out the work of the department.

The chamber's fire prevention committee urged a similar code three years ago on the basis that it would save the city $50,000 annually in fire insurance rates.

LONDON—(INS)—A floating German mine, borne by capricious sea currents, accidentally brought widespread damage today to a community on England's east coast.

BARRYMORE IN N. Y. HOSPITAL

Elaine Says He's Just Tired: Hospital Says For 'Observation.'

NEW YORK — (INS) — Things have been so hectic for John Barrymore since he entered foot in New York in his new play that he had to enter a hospital early today to get a good night's rest.

The "great profile" entered Mt. Sinai hospital at 1 a. m. this morning for nothing more serious than a good snooze, according to Elaine Barrie, the wife with whom he recently became reconciled. The hospital records, however, stated he was there for "observation."

But word went out that Barrymore would appear on schedule for his matinee and night performances.

FEAR ABATES

Ohio River Ice Jam to Break Soon; Alarm Fading.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Ice massed in the Ohio river from Pennsylvania to Louisville since the recent cold wave will likely move in the next 24 hours, U. S. army engineers said.

Bringing about the great defrosting process were recent general rains, which raised the river at the rate of two-tenths of an inch an hour. There was no need for alarm, Lieut. George Kumpe of the engineers staff, asserted.

The Ohio had been at its lowest stage here since 1935 and in some places the lowest in history. The entire stream was from 10 to 18 inches below the usual minimum navigation depths, Kumpe said.

With the temperature expected to range between 25 and 30 degrees today, Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux said conditions for a normal breakup of the ice were "most favorable."

BROWDER LOSES

Communist Finishes Poor Third In Congressional Race.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Earl R. Browder, Communist leader, finished a poor third today in the 14th congressional district election to choose a successor to the late Congressman Dr. William I. Sirovich.

M. Michael Edelstein, the Tammany and New Deal candidate, won overwhelmingly, collecting 12,962 votes to 6,665 for Louis J. Lefkowitz, the GOP nominee who was endorsed by Thomas E. Dewey and 3,680 for Browder.

COSTS COUNTY $1.22 A VOTE

Primary Expense Hits $5,440 While Only 4,438 Voted in Special Election.

It cost Richland county $1.22 per vote to nominate two congressional candidates in Tuesday's election. Election board officials said today that cost of the primary would be $5,440 while there were 4,438 votes cast.

Cost of the primary and the special election Feb. 27 must be paid from the county's general fund because they were called after the election appropriation for 1940 was set up.

The election in three weeks is expected to cost slightly less than the one yesterday because the ballots will be smaller and easier to print. Each of the six counties in the 17th district must meet its own election costs.

With approximately 24,000 votes cast in the six counties the cost per vote was slightly under $1 each in the entire 17th district. The primary cost the district about $22,000.

In the 22nd district which also went to the polls yesterday, the vote cost averaged $2.50, election officials said.

GET WAGE BOOST

15,000 Glass Workers to Share $1,200,000 Increase.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Federation of Flat Glass Workers of America (CIO) has signed contracts with the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company and the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company granting $1,200,000 in pay bosts to 15,000 workers, union President Irwin De Shetler, of Columbus, O., said today.

He declared the one-year pacts provided a general two-cent-an-hour increase and elimination of differences between wages paid by the companies.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

Carpenter Carves Initials on Court Bench: Gets Two Fines.

SEATTLE — (AP) — Richard Hughes, 22-year-old carpenter, whiled away time waiting to be tried on a traffic charge by carving his initials in a police court bench.

Result: A $10 traffic fine and $5 for wood carving. Hughes had the $10 but was stuck in court until a friend brought the $5.

FROZEN TO DEATH

McKEESPORT, Pa.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Pavlovic, 29-year-old mother, broke her back, right leg and right arm in an 80-foot plunge from a bridge then froze to death as she lay helpless on the ice-covered Youghiogheny river. Detectives said she apparently jumped from the bridge seven hours before her body was found yesterday.

MOVEMENT FOR ALLIED AID TO FINNS GROWS

'Complete' Help for Finland Demanded in Paris; Claim Wars Not Separated.

Finland Claims Reds Thrown Back Again After Staging 4 New Offensives.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—A popular movement in France to sweep the government in to "complete" aid for Finland in her war against Russia assumed steam roller proportions today.

The authoritative newspaper Le Temps devoted both its editorials to aid for Finland, asserting this must be "effective, complete and total."

The newspaper said flatly it was no longer possible to separate the "Russian-Finnish war from the European war properly speaking."

The newspaper's demand for quick aid to the Finns came on the heels of insistence by Premier Daladier's own Radical-Socialist party that France go to the aid of the little Baltic state.

Germany is leaning on Russia for effective military and economic aid, the newspaper continued, "the two forces of oppression now are only one, it is already impossible to separate them; their destinies are linked."

(In Berlin today authoritative German spokesmen denied Germany had been asked for or was giving any military aid to Russia in her fight against Finland.)

"Any blow against the aggressor in Finland," the newspaper concluded, "is against the ally and helper of Hitler and directly affects him."

FAVORS SLASH

Garner, Casting First Vote in 6 Years, Breaks Tie.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Vice President John N. Garner, explaining the first vote he has cast in the senate in nearly six years, told friends today that whenever there is an opportunity he will support any move to trim government appropriations.

Garner broke a 31 to 31 tie in the senate yesterday on an amendment to the independent offices appropriation bill to cut $115,259 from the civil aeronautics authority. He voted for the amendment, and later told senators:

"When it comes to a vote to reduce appropriations, I vote 'aye.' When it comes to a vote to increase appropriations, I vote 'no'."

The vote immediately was interpreted here as a vote against the president.

KILLED AFTER 6-HOUR SIEGE

Drink-Crazed Ohio Farmer Wounds 2 Deputies; Defies Machine-Gun Fire.

(By Associated Press)

LEBANON—Lloyd Gentry, 44-year-old farmer, was shot 11 times and killed about 2 a. m. today after a six-hour siege in which he wounded two deputy sheriffs and became the target for hand grenades, tear gas bombs and machine-gun fire.

A score of police and deputies from Lebanon, Middletown, Franklin and Mason, all nearby communities, took part.

Gentry's home, to which Sheriff William Hufford and two deputies had been summoned on complaint of his wife, was "riddled" by grenade and gunfire, the sheriff said, but Gentry slipped from the house apparently before the siege started and took refuge in a nearby barn.

The wounded men were Gerald Couden, who accompanied Hufford and Marion Henderson, 40, who pursued Gentry into a haymow of the barn. Gentry was a tenant on the place.

Hufford said Henderson grappled with his assailant after he was shot and that before other deputies could come to his aid, Gentry attacked him with a razor.

Deputy Charles Baker entered the fray, beat Gentry over the head with his pistol as Henderson freed himself, then shot the drink-crazed farmer.

Eight bullets entered his head, and three, his arms.

Taken to Blair hospital, Lebanon, Henderson was given an even chance to recover.

17TH DISTRICT NOMINEES WIN RACES EASILY

McGregor Captures Five of Six Counties; Ashbrook's Edge Nearly 1,700.

VOTING UNUSUALLY LIGHT

Only 4,438 Go to Polls in County, 2,393 in City; Election Feb. 27.

A whirlwind primary campaign over, two survivors were preparing today for an equally intensive campaign for election to the 17th district congress seat in just three weeks.

They were J. Harry McGregor, Coshocton county Republican, and Byron B. Ashbrook, Johnstown Democrat, victors in yesterday's special party primaries, which was marked by an almost entire absence of interest and a vote that was less than half the size of the regular 1938 primary vote for the same office.

McGregor, carrying five of the six counties in the district, polled 7,648 votes, defeating two other Republicans for the nomination. They were Walter B. Woodward, Bellville Republican, the district nominee in 1938, who was expected to poll a heavy Townsend vote, and Col. Oliver H. Dockery, jr., of Newark, who carried Licking county, but lost to McGregor by 4,539 votes.

Ashbrook, nephew of the late Congressman William A. Ashbrook, whose death Jan. 1 brought about the special election, carried three of the six counties in the district, and polled 4,323 votes, far outstripping his closest opponent, Atty. George J. McDonald of Newark.

How Others Fared.

Total votes polled by the runner-up candidates were:

Republicans — Dockery, 3,109; Woodward, 3,010.

Democrats — McDonald, 2,651; Ben A. Arneson, Delaware, 1,581; Frank Cave, Mansfield, 1,309; Atty. William Haas, Delaware, 332; Burch Ferenbaugh, Danville, 242.

In the free-for-all contest on the Democratic ticket, Ashbrook, the winner, carried Ashland, Coshocton, and Knox counties, but lost his own, Licking, to McDonald by

KILLED AS SPY

Alsatian Leader Dies Before French Firing Squad.

NANCY, France—(AP)—Dr. Karl Roos, 60-year-old Alsatian autonomy leader, convicted of espionage for Germany, was executed at dawn today by a firing squad. President Albert LeBrun had refused his plea for clemency.

On last Oct. 29, immediately after Roos was convicted, he was reported to have been shot, but actually the execution had been delayed pending action on his appeal.

A soldier named Lobstein was sentenced to death with Roos by a military tribunal. He, too, previously was reported executed, but it was disclosed today the sentence had been commuted by President LeBrun to life imprisonment at hard labor.

Roos was accused of having furnished information to German agents on the movements of French troops in March, 1936, when Germany reoccupied the Rhineland and in September, 1938, during the crisis over Germany's claim to the Czechoslovak Sudetenland.

Famed Quints Turn Smiles On News-Journal Readers Sunday

The most famous sisters in the world will turn their equally famous smiles on News-Journal readers Sunday when they make their debut—in picture form—in Mansfield.

The Dionne quintuplets have grown from tiny, wriggling and wrinkled bits of humanity into unusually beautiful and intelligent children, and the entire world has watched that development with an almost personal interest.

No other attraction in the world has "held up" as this one has—with the possible exception of Niagara Falls! On holidays and Sundays the Dafoe hospital and nursery at Corbel has been the mecca for 10,000 persons a day, many of them traveling across a continent, just to see five small girls at play.

From the minute they were born the right to take pictures of them has been held by one Toronto newspaper, which in turn now syndicates them through King Features, and it is from the latter that The News-Journal has purchased the right to publish them.

"How the Five Little Quints Grew" is a fascinating story that will be told by pictures in The News-Journal's Sunday edition each week. Particularly interesting to parents of small children will be the articles on how the quints were punished when they were naughty, for their former guardian, Dr. Alan Dafoe, is now regarded as an authority on child psychology. He is still physician to the famous children.

Late Hours Worry Mother

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When I get a letter like the following, I sigh for the good old days when Lillian Russell was the leading glamour girl, and daughter spent her evenings at home entertaining her best young man in the back parlor, and about nine o'clock mother sent in a plate of ginger cookies and nice red apples for daughter and her "steady."

But "gone with the wind" are those days, and daughter now is likely to betake herself to a roadhouse to dance and the ginger cookies are replaced with dry martinis or old-fashioneds, or maybe three fingers of straight. Nerve-racking as it is, mother has got to talk to daughter not from the high plane of maternal experience to the young bud unfolding to womanhood, but as woman to woman. And her talk must be straight goods, the facts of life not overlooked.

The following is a letter from a lady full of anxiety over this mother-daughter problem:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I've been a reader of your column for twenty years or more and am bringing my problem to you, hoping your advice will help me. I have two children, a boy 21 and a girl who wil be 20 next month. I've a hard time making my daughter come home on time whenever she goes out with her boy or girl friends. I allow her five or six hours in which to have a good time, to which she answers: 'If you didn't tell me what time to come home, maybe I could make it.'

"The young man she goes out with is twelve years older than she is and has been used to going out with older women. My husband is the children's stepfather, but he is better to them than their own father ever was. In fact, my daughter has seen her own father only once, as we separated a month before she was born. She was reared by her grandparents and has a nice home with her stepfather and me.

"I realize that my own mother and father were pretty strict with me and I couldn't go out very often, but we are not that way with my children. We always welcome their friends at our home, because we want to know who they are. We take them on trips and to good cabarets, so that they may feel hospitable toward their young friends.

"So you see, my husband is really an exception when it comes to being a stepfather. I hate the word. He is so thoughtful and good and wants them to have everything and be happy. He has his own business, and is sending my boy through college.

"My son and daughter have never caused me any serious worry, but if you have any suggestions about my daughter staying out so late, I will be glad to follow them to the letter, because I trust you.

"ANXIOUS MOTHER."

It's difficult for women of our generation, yours and mine, to keep our daughters from doing what all other girls of her age are doing. You can't set her apart and make her different without doing her more harm than good with her own crowd. But you can talk to her as you would to a woman of your own age.

There is a wide difference between letting a girl go with her own crowd and giving her some personal liberty than denying her the privilege of having any dates at all. The wise modern mother, if she is shocked at the hours her daughter keeps, must try to conceal it, and do her best to teach the girl how to take care of herself in following this new pattern of life.

Among the new government publications, the department of public health has reprinted a very sensible pamphlet, "Sex Education in Secondary Schools." It's not a tract and I shall be very glad to put anyone in the way of getting this very good government publication if a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope is sent to me.

THEATERS

THE FAD for having big premieres away from Hollywood will give Port Huron, Mich., the opener on "Young Tom Edison." It will be held Saturday, the day before Edison's birthday. The film will arrive in Port Huron aboard an ancient woodburning train, which Henry Ford is having polished up for the occasion. Peddling gum and candy in the aisles will be a young news butcher, dressed exactly as was young Tom Edison when he served as "train butcher." And the butcher, as you may have guessed, will be none other than Mickey Rooney, who plays the youthful Edison role. However, realism will stop here, for Rooney will not set the baggage coach afire as did Edison in trying out his experiments.

Changed Shipping History.

Just a little more than a century ago, a little steamship ventured out of the port of London, bound for New York, the first ship to attempt crossing the vast Atlantic solely by power of steam. The voyage of that ship changed the maritime history of the world, and Hollywood used it as a pivotal fact in its dramatic "Rulers of the Sea," which opens today at the Ohio. Will Fyffe, English actor, is seen as the inventor of the steam engine. Romance and action is injected into the story by Douglas Fairbanks and Margaret Lockwood.

* * *

Intrigue and Romance.

An entirely different type of story is used in Sonja Henie's latest picture, "Everything Happens at Night," for although it still contains romance and laughter as have her preceding films, it revolves around a modern problem. A great statesman of Europe is in hiding in Switzerland, and his daughter, the world's greatest skater, attempts to get the real story before the world. International intrigue goes hand in hand with fancy skating. Ray Milland and Robert Cummings support the blond star. At the Madison.

* * *

Eddy at Ritz.

Nelson Eddy sings his way through love and adventure in "Let Freedom Ring," which is being shown at the Ritz. Edward Arnold and Virginia Bruce, Lionel Barrymore and Guy Kibbee are also in the cast. The story revolves around the fight of Iowa farmers against the encroachment of the railroads in the early 1880's. The second feature is equally interesting for it's the Leslie Howard-Ingrid Bergman picture, "Intermezzo: A Love Story."

* * *

Battle In the Desert.

One of the most spectacular scenes imaginable is that of the revolt of the Dervishes of the desert in "Four Feathers," an attraction at the Majestic. Stark realism has been used in this massacre scene, with vultures waiting to swoop on the dead after the battle. This Alexander Korda color film is one of the best of the films revolving around the British army in India. Also shown is "Lady of the Tropics" with Robert Taylor and Hedy Lamarr.

* * *

A Humorous Ghost.

Delving into the psychic world and turning it into gay comedy is a trick that could be done only in Hollywood, and this is what happens in "Topper Takes a Trip," a Park attraction. Constance Bennett is the "ghost" with a sense of humor who appears and disappears at will. Roland Young is seen again as Topper, the little fellow dominated by his wife. "Those High Grey Walls" has Walter Connolly and Onslow Stevens.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

My answer to Mary's question was swift.

"Yes, I want the new lines delivered in exactly the same fashion as the rest of the play," I said. "We can't take any chances of having Olina's report to her prospective step-father that you were very spirited in your rendition."

"Of course not," Mary assented. Then she added doubtfully: "But I'm not sure I can do that with new lines in which he has not rehearsed me."

"I can manage it," I said confidently. "On second thought, don't look at those lines until after I come back from seeing Olina. I won't be long. In the meantime, lie down and relax. Shut your eyes and doze off for a few minutes, if you can."

"But I can't," she protested. "You're one in a million, you know, being able to charge your physical and mental energy anew with naps so short a cat wouldn't own them. I'll stretch out. I'll relax. I'll even close my eyes, but I can't go to sleep, and there's no use promising you something I can't do."

"I'll be satisfied with the rest of the program," I said, going out of the door. I paused in the corridor to draw a deep breath and square my shoulders before going down to the suite which Olina shared with her mother. I did not expect any particular display of temperament, but Olina is a person of whom you are never sure, and I meant to be prepared for anything.

But I found her unusually docile, and knew that the reason was the presence of her mother. Queen Olga was busily knitting, her lap full of brightly colored wools, and I hastily forestalled her motion to rise and greet me.

"Don't get up!" I adjured her. "Indeed, I didn't come to see you at all, but your daughter. I have brought her the lines of her role."

"Oh-h!" Olina breathed. "How wonderful! May I see them?" She held out her hands eagerly.

"Olina!" Her mother's voice was low, but it had the touch of the whip-lash in it, and the girl let her hands drop to her sides.

"Yes, Maman," she said submissively.

"Please do not forget your training that way again," her mother said. "Mrs. Graham has kindly consented to do you this great favor, and you must not spoil it by impatience."

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Graham," Olina said prettily, and I took refuge from a situation embarrassing to me by saying: "Pray don't think of it again!" and then held out the abbreviated manuscript containing her lines.

"If you'll excuse us," I said to Queen Olga. "I'd like to go over these with Olina."

"But, of course," she said. "Would you rather I left?"

"Indeed no," I said emphatically. "I won't be a minute explaining these. But I would like to have them learned ready for recital in half an hour. If you could hear her recite them—"

"I shall be glad to do that," the queen said. "And she will be ready in the half hour. I know you would not ask it if it were not possible."

"It is entirely possible for a girl as intelligent as your daughter," I answered. Then after a few words of explanation to Olina I went back to Mary's room.

Mary, dutifully stretched out upon her bed, opened her eyes as I came into the room without knocking, for I had told her I would be back almost immediately.

"You see, I followed directions," she said. "Tell me, how did you get on with Sister Olina?"

She stopped short and looked at me wide-eyed.

"There's a thought!" she said. "Do you realize that when this marriage is pulled off, Olina will be Noel's sister and mine?"

Freud Made Great Contribution

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

FREUD made a valuable contribution to the world by showing the importance and persistence of early experiences of the child. Early impressions may persist even though we are not conscious that they do.

Herbert Spencer, the great English philosopher, said in his autobiography:

"My most vivid childish recollection . . . worth mentioning because of its psychological interest, is that of certain results caused in me by being left alone for the first time. Everyone was out save the nurse, who had been left in charge of me; and she presently seized the occasion to go out, too, locking up the house and leaving me by myself.

Bells Made Him Sad.

"On one evening every week, which happened to be the evening in question, it was a custom to ring a peal on the bells of the chief church in Derby . . . and while I was suffering the agonies of this first experience of solitude, its bells were merrily going. The effect was to establish in me so strong an association that all through the earlier part of my life, and even in adult years, I never heard these bells without a feeling of sadness coming over me."

I can understand this. When I was a boy on the farm, I remember that my maternal grandparents used to visit us on weekends frequently. Always they left our home about 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Very fond of these grandparents, I always dreaded to see them go, and felt a melancholy sadness for a few hours after they had gone.

To this day, on Sunday afternoon, if I am not busy or amused, a strange feeling of depression may seize me which is as much like that Sunday afternoon sadness of my childhood as anything I can imagine.

Fears Paint.

The other day there came a letter from a young woman who wrote of her awful fear of turpentine and paint. She said her mother told her when she was a little girl that a neighbor woman, attempting to apply a lotion to her head, put turpentine on it by mistake and went insane. "Absurd," you say. None the less, it became a fixed belief by the child and lingered on. I trust my sympathetic letter to her helped her.

We children used to like the pears which fell from the trees between two hives of bees on our farm. We were told that if we bit our tongues good and hard, bees would not bother us. Twenty-five years later, while shaving, I suddenly bit my tongue and then noticed that the radiator had begun to buzz. To this day, when a bee buzzes suddenly near me, I bite my tongue and then know why afterwards. Yes, early childhood experiences and influences do persist.

Solving Current Problems.

Q. You so often urge us parents to read to the baby and young child. Do you have a selected list of such books?

A. Yes, and you may have it by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Q. How soon should I first take my baby to the dentist?

A. Not later than the age of two, following your doctor's advice, in the meanwhile, on proper foods to build up the child and especially to build his teeth.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SET UP THE DUMMY

Most players are taught in their early days—and soundly—that the normal play for a suit contract involves elimination of losing cards from the hand which contains the longer string of trumps. When they are eliminated, the rest of the cards are good. That applies generally, but sometimes it is better to reverse the process and perhaps set up the dummy because, though it has a shorter string of trumps, it also has a smaller number of losing cards.

	♠ A ♥ A K 6 ♦ J 9 8 5 3 ♣ A Q J 2
♠ 9 7 4 ♥ 8 7 3 ♦ A K 6 4 ♣ 5 4 3	N. W. E. S.	♠ K Q 10 8 6 ♥ 9 5 ♦ Q 10 7 ♣ K 9 8
	♠ J 5 3 2 ♥ Q J 10 4 2 ♦ 2 ♣ 10 7 6

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

At one table of a duplicate game, North opened this deal with 1-Diamond, East bid 1-Spade, West 1-No Trump, North doubled, South bid 2-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.

West led the diamond K, then the A, which South ruffed. South then embarked on a plan to get rid of his spade losers. He took the spade A, re-entered his hand with a heart, ruffed one spade, re-entered his hand with a diamond ruff, trumped a second spade, ruffed another diamond, then his last spade, but wound up losing both a trump and a club, making barely four-odd.

At another table, after winning the second diamond, South got busy setting up the dummy. He led the club 10 and let it lose, won the returned trump in dummy, ruffed a diamond, setting up the rest of that suit, then took the heart Q, heart K and then ran dummy's diamonds, clubs and spade A, making five-odd.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ 10 ♥ 6 3 2 ♦ K Q 5 3 ♣ Q 10 7 4 2
♠ K Q J 7 ♥ 8 5 ♦ 9 7 ♣ A K J 9 8	N. W. E. S.	♠ 8 6 3 2 ♥ A K J 10 4 ♦ 10 8 4 2 ♣ None
	♠ A 9 5 4 ♥ Q 9 7 ♦ A J 6 ♣ 6 5 3

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

After West takes two clubs, East two hearts, and East returns the spade 8, how should South play for his wild contract of 3-No Trumps?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Feb. 8

Commotion, excitement sudden change or disruption prevail on this day, according to a very interesting, if ambiguous, chain of planetary configurations. The mental forces and faculties will be pitched to high levels of inspiration, progressive ideas and brisk action, with the physical energies ready to jump into harness to put over brilliant programs. New projects, based on innovation and novelty, being pursued vigorously, diligently and decisively, may have aspects of disruption and devastation prior to attaining high objectives.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of definite accomplishment, possibly in new fields of enterprise and with side issues of disturbance, devastation and seeming disaster. But these are preliminary to uprooting old or static situations prior to rebuilding on modern and progressive foundations. Be prudent.

A child born on this day may be forceful, ingenious, keen and original in thought and audacious in action. It may have great initiative in new and progressive lines.

GIRL AT THE FRONT + + + + +

CHAPTER XIX

A thousand fears assailed Claire as she crouched on the cot in the little secret room waiting for Roland to leave the flat. Listening intently, she could hear his voice mingled with those of Frau Weber and her daughter Lili. She twisted her handkerchief in her hands, fighting for self-control.

Suppose Bill Cameron should come while Roland was there? She had no doubt that Roland would immediately denounce him—call the brownshirted police, and Cameron would be marched off to face a firing squad.

Claire had no way of knowing that Frau Weber had prepared against just such an eventuality. That a secret signal had been arranged which was passed on to Cameron. If he came stumbling into the place now, it would be only because he was closely pursued or had failed to see the narrow edge of white paper that had been slipped under the door and protruding into the hall. This was the signal arranged earlier in the day, the signal of danger.

To Roland or to any one else, it would appear to be merely a scrap of paper which had been carelessly dropped. To Cameron, it would mean that some one was in the flat—to stay in hiding until the paper was removed.

* * *

It was nearly 7:30 when Claire was startled by a light tap on the wall and heard Lili calling in a low voice that the visitor had gone. Claire unlocked the lever which slid back the wall panel and stepped out into the bedroom.

Frau Weber was plainly nervous, although she tried to conceal it. She had taken up her knitting and her needles were flying, although Claire couldn't help but notice that she often glanced toward the outer door of the flat—the door through which Bill Cameron would come—if he came.

"Oh, Frau Weber, do you think anything's gone wrong?" Claire asked, her anxiety reflected in her voice.

"I don't know, my dear," the older woman answered truthfully. "I do know, though, it was fortunate that Herr Cameron did not come a little early. If he had, he would have met Herr Roland—and that would have been fatal."

She glanced at the door.

"The way is clear now," she went on. "I had a signal placed to warn Herr Cameron away if he had come while our visitor was here." She explained about the paper, and Claire saw that the floor under the door was now clear.

"What will I do if anything has happened to him?"

"We'll see that you get back to Paris," Frau Weber said.

"I'm not thinking about myself . . ."

The buzzer sounded in the room and although it had been muffled so that it was barely discernible, it seemed so sharp, coming when it did, that the three women started up impulsively.

"Some one's coming. Get out of sight," the woman ordered, and Claire scurried into the bedroom, through the wall and slid the panel in place.

Straining her ears, she heard the front door open—the sound of voices. Then she heard the door slam shut. She had unlocked the panel and was through the heavy chest and into the bedroom before Lili called her name.

"Clara! He is here!"

* * *

Claire sped through the room and stopped in consternation as she saw a tall man in Nazi uniform, crutches under his arms. Beside him stood a shorter man, also in Nazi uniform. For a moment Claire didn't recognize Cameron, and then with a glad cry was in his arms, he was kissing her and tears were streaming from her eyes.

No word of love ever had been spoken between them, but it was as if deep affection always had been there, below the surface, needing just some incident to crystalize it.

"Oh, Bill, Bill!" the girl cried. "I thought I'd never see you again!"

"Dearest," Cameron murmured. "Dearest Claire."

The girl suddenly realized that she was held tightly in Cameron's arms. His crutches had fallen, unheeded, to the floor. She was conscious that Frau Weber and Lili were laughing and that the small man who had been Bill's guide was grinning broadly.

"Oh," she said, shyly. "Oh, dear, what am I doing?"

Lili, her mother and the man in Nazi uniform laughed aloud then, and Cameron joined in the laugh at their expense. Claire found herself laughing with them.

"Well, Herr Cameron," the other man said. "I must be off. Good luck to you and a safe journey."

"I can never thank you enough, Eric," Cameron said sincerely, holding out his hand. "If I ever can do anything for you . . ."

"If you can do something for Germany — the real Germany, sometime, Herr Cameron," the man said, "I will be a thousandfold repaid. If you can tell your government the true situation—how many of our people really feel but do not dare to speak—anything we have been able to do will be well worth while. Good-bye."

He clicked his heels stiffly, saluted, did a military about-face and marched to the door. He opened it, went out, and shut it without turning around.

* * *

Frau Weber took charge then and told them they had better get closer to the hideout room.

"Some one may come," she warned. "We can't always depend on them stepping on the stair that sounds the buzzer. If they came in a hurry, should happen to miss it, they'd be on us without any more warning than the key in the lock."

Cameron agreed that it was foolish to risk capture or endanger the Webers needlessly, and Claire took him through the adjoining room and showed him where they could hide.

After he had carried his crutches into the hideout and removed the heavy bandage which had been about his right foot, Cameron sat down with Claire in the bedroom and demanded the full story of how she had come to Berlin.

She told it as simply as she could, but before she finished he was kneeling on the floor beside her, his arms about her.

"You darling child," he said softly. "You went through all that for me. Why—why did you do it?"

"Because I . . ." She stopped in confusion. "I think, Mr. Cameron," she said as primly as she ever had spoken to him when she was his confidential secretary, "you should explain why you have your arms about me."

"Because, Claire, I love you," he said, simply.

* * *

She leaned forward, her lips touching his and clinging to them for a moment.

"I love you, too Bill—my Bill—dear Bill," She finally had spoken aloud the words that had been in her mind so much in the last few days. Words that were engraved on her heart.

They clung together for several minutes, and then Claire pushed him gently away.

"You haven't told me yet," she said, "if you followed the instructions I was told to give you."

"I did. I pretended to break down, after word had reached me, and told them I was ready to talk if they would promise to see that I got safely out of the country. They promised, of course, and I put on a good act—I told them the whole plan, the date and everything, but I gave them the wrong time as your message instructed."

"Then what happened, dear?"

"They tossed me into a small room and locked the door. Later, some kind soul told me I was to be taken out and shot at 7 o'clock tonight. Of course, I put up a yell—reminded them of their promise. They were very polite, but quite firm about it. They had the information they wanted. I was of no further use to them alive—so . . ."

"My poor darling," Claire murmured. "How, then, did you get away?"

"Albert, my guard, slipped me a note later. It instructed me to make a terrific noise when he gave the signal. I was to demand to be taken to the commandant. My friends—or your friends, they must be—knew that the Nazis were none too certain of their ground and would at least give me a chance to make one last plea for my life. The note instructed me, when I was opposite the second corridor, to slug Albert and make a run for it. A plan was drawn out to show me how to get through a broken part of the wall where I would be met and helped."

Calls at Central Drug Store and tells the Vendol Man what a wonderful medicine he has. Recommends it to her friends.

The residents of Mansfield have truly given Vendol a grand reception since the Vendol Man arrived at Central Drug Store to supervise the sale in this community, and never a day passes but what some outstanding resident tells how this famous medicine has brought relief.

Mrs. Lottie Auten, wife of the well known machinist and a lifetime resident of Fredericktown, a few miles from Mansfield, came in last Thursday and had these words of praise for this grand medicine. She said:

"I was certainly feeling bad when I began taking Vendol a few weeks ago, and all of it was due to constipation. This condition had my stomach so upset that I couldn't eat many things I wanted without making me bloat up with gas, sour, acid risings, came up and burned my throat, and my tongue looked red and fiery. Even a glass of malted milk would turn sour in my stomach.

"This constipation also made me feel bilious, spots danced before my eyes, my skin looked sallow, and I was so nervous I couldn't get restful sleep.

THE VENDOL MAN Daily At Central Drug Store

"I heard a lot about Vendol, so got some, and it gave the nicest, smoothest, most satisfying relief from constipation I had known in many a day; then my other troubles just gradually passed off till today I'm really feeling like another woman.

"I can't say too much in praise of Vendol, and never miss a chance to recommend it to my friends."

Don't confuse Vendol with any other medicine. All druggists sell it, and the Vendol Man is daily at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts., to explain all about it. Come see him; give Vendol a chance to help you, too.

Britain Executes Two for I. R. A. Bomb Deaths of Five

POLICE GUARD TIGHTENED TO STOP RIOTING

Pair Dies on Gallows as Crowd Waits Outside Prison; Pleas for Leniency Denied.

(By Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, England—Two members of the outlawed Irish Republican army died on the gallows today in bleak, fog-shrouded Winton Green goal, and Great Britain waited vigilantly for the reaction of Irish nationalists.

As a clock chimed nine, the hour of doom, those in a throng outside the prison bared their heads in the chill mist. There was no sign of a demonstration.

Silently the crowd watched when, seven minutes later, a prison official tacked up notices of the execution on a small door in the center of the prison gate. The notices disclosed that the men, James Richards, 29, and Peter Barnes, 32, went to death at the same moment.

Barnes and Richards were convicted of planting a bomb in a tradesman's delivery tricycle as it stood along the curb at Coventry. The bomb exploded and killed five persons.

Thousands of police reinforcements were held on overtime duty in London and other large cities on the possibility that the execution might signal a new outburst of terrorism—if not conflict in Ireland.

Extra guards has patrolled the prison grounds and Birmingham police the nearlby streets to block any attempt at delivery of the condemned men.

All vehicles were stopped some distance from the prison, and officers forced the waiting throng of several hundred persons back into side streets.

A priest who had administered last rites for Barnes and Richards left the prison a half-hour before the execution. They were reported to have spent their last hours quietly.

Theirs was the first civil trial and execution of Irish Republican extremists since the 1876 hanging of three men for the killing of a Manchester police sergeant. As the "Manchester Martyrs," their memory is hallowed by Irish patriots.

Theirs also were the first death sentences handed down since the I. R. A.—outlawed in Great Britain and Ireland—began its violent campaign a little more than a year ago for the avowed purpose of "driving the British out of Ireland."

The I. R. A. wants a union between Ireland (Eire) and northern Ireland (Ulster,) which as a part of the British United Kingdom pays fealty to the British crown. Irish nationalists all share this desire, and while many disavow the methods of the I. R. A., its members claim the tacit sympathy of many non-member Irishmen.

Union between the six-counties of northern Ireland and Ireland proper is an aim of the Dublin government—in fact, it is envisaged in the Irish constitution—but Prime Minister Eamon De Valera has adopted stern measures to keep the I. R. A. in check.

Barnes and Richards went to their death despite a great flood of appeals for clemency or reprieve.

Operating Profit Of Ohio Brass Up $450,000 In 1939

A marked increase in operating profit was reported yesterday at the annual meeting of the Ohio Brass company directors, at which officers of the company were re-elected without change.

The company's annual report showed a net operating profit in 1939 of $468,620, as compared with a profit of only $15,629 the previous year.

A dividend of $1 was paid on the 317,534 shares of common stock in 1939, as compared with 25 cents per share in 1938.

The company's annual statement reported $100,293 expended for new machinery and equipment during 1939, slightly less than the $112,512 expended for the same purpose in 1938.

Jap Premier Scores 'Pressure' From U. S.

Up and Down THE STREET

Russell von Wieder, who teaches swimming at Liberty park in the summer and fencing at Kenyon college in the winter, has a new pupil in his class at the Gambier school whom he believes will make quite a fencer. The pupil is Don McNeill, who was a member of the U. S. Davis Cup tennis team last year. The tennis star is a "natural fencer," according to von Wieder, who expects to bring him to Mansfield for a fencing exhibition in the near future.

There was one precinct yesterday where booth workers led the "life of Riley." With voting at a new low in the special primary, election workers in precinct 2-B made use of the quarters they had at the Jones Memorial. The "booth" in this case had steam heat, a radio and a full case of books so workers could spend the time in comfort.

* * *

The only person discommoded by the changes in precinct voting places yesterday because of the weather, was a man who called the election board to tell them that there wasn't any place for him to vote because the voting booth had been moved "somewhere" without notification. Election board officials pointed out that it had merely been moved from a garage into the house because of the cold, that a sign had been posted on the door of the garage, the flags were placed in front of the house and the change had been announced in the paper. "Oh, well, I didn't really look around much. I didn't care whether I voted or not," he said.

Beginning tomorrow with the opening of National Boy Scout week and continuing for one week, the Boy Scout uniform will be a familiar sight on Mansfield streets and in public places. It is the custom during this week for scouts to wear their uniforms in place of their regular clothes. Boy Scout week is observed throughout the country from Feb. 8-15.

McGuire, 23, who was killed yesterday when the car in which he was riding skidded on the ice and struck a tree near Bucyrus, will be held at his home at 2:30 p. m. Thursday and at the Zion Lutheran church at 3:00 p. m. with Rev. J. H. Kuhlman officiating. Burial will be in the Greenlawn cemetery.

Maxwell Hoover, 29, Loudonville, restaurant operator, driver of the car, received minor injuries, but remained in the hospital for treatment. The three men were en route to Chicago when the accident occurred.

SCOUTS 'PLUG' BIKE ORDINANCE

Spokesman Urges Council to Consider License Plan as Boys Attend Session.

Boy Scout "councilmen" attending last night's council meeting as part of their observance of National Boy Scout week here, didn't pass up an opportunity to "plug" for legislation they are seeking.

Scout Scott Keller, "councilman-at-large," told council that Mansfield youths wanted a bicycle license ordinance.

With the poise of a veteran speaker, Keller asked councilmen to consider the proposal first presented nearly two years ago.

"I would like to recommend that council consider a plan for licensing all bicycles in the city," he said. "It was my party's platform and one that I think is worthy of serious thought."

He made no suggestions as to what the licenses should cost but explained that the Scouts planned to back up the enforcement, if council would pass such a law, by establishing a "bicycle court."

Attending last night's session were the three Scout councilmen-at-large: James Terry, Ned Kell and Keller; Joseph Nixon, First ward; William Dent, Second ward; Richard James, Third ward; Richard DePue, Fourth ward, and Leonard Wappner, Sixth ward.

Wayne Sweval, council president, presided, and James Gardner, served as clerk. Scout William Maxwell, attended the meeting in the capacity of city solicitor.

DIES IN ASHLAND

ASHLAND—Miss Sarah Elizabeth Camp, 71, of near Red Haw, died in the Samaritan hospital here today after an illness of two months. She was born in Red Haw, June 21, 1869, and was a member of the Methodist church.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 2 p. m. Friday, with burial in Red Haw cemetery.

ELECTION, BALL TONIGHT TO CLOSE PLUMBERS' CONVENTION

Dr. Smith, principal speaker at the banquet, struck sharply at defeatism in the U. S.—the spirit of "the job doesn't matter you'll get your $60 a month."

"This," he said, "is dangerous to American youth," although he blamed part of the feeling on the continued depression.

"Adventure is still to be had," he declared. "Only the location has changed." This point he clarified by pointing to the development of plastics and other new industrial discoveries.

Climaxing his address, Dr. Smith asserted: "The United States is God's adventure. Look here for a new Eden. The discovery of this vast country was not delayed until the 'day before yesterday' by accident. It is here that you and I shall work out with Him the answer to the insoluble problem of the hatreds of the world."

Election of officers this afternoon will conclude three days of business sessions and a grand ball tonight will climax the 49th annual convention of the Ohio State Association of Master Plumbers.

This morning more than 400 plumbing contractors from all parts of the state were addressed by State Health Director Dr. R. H. Markwith and Fred L. Waring, chief engineer for the state department, who discussed county health codes.

At a banquet in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel, last night, the contractors and their wives heard Dr. Charles Copeland Smith, Chicago, describe the United States as the "New Eden."

He was followed by Judge Homer A. Ramey, Toledo municipal judge who told the audience that "law enforcement is a thing favored by everyone—for everyone but himself."

The women's auxiliary of the plumbers' association which met in conjunction with the convention concluded its business session yesterday afternoon with the re-election of its officers.

Re-named were Mrs. Sam Shelton, Youngstown, president; Mrs. Neil S. Larsen, Toledo, vice-president; Mrs. August Schmutz, Youngstown, secretary, and Miss Florence A. Eckhardt, treasurer.

ON 'LAST RIDE'

Four Taken From County Jail to Pen, Workhouse.

Four inmates of the county jail were taken for their "last ride" for some time when Sheriff E. P. Long transferred them to the Columbus workhouse and the Ohio State penitentiary in Columbus.

Roscoe Kauffman, convicted of obtaining money under false pretense, was taken to the workhouse to serve 90 days and $75 and costs, which he drew as a result of soliciting money of Bellville merchants last Halloween under pretense of a community celebration. Kauffman had just finished serving a sentence in Wayne county jail for a similar offense.

The three who were taken to the state prison to begin sentences from one to 20 years were John Ickes, Mansfield, on forgery charge, and James Mayer and Frank Grisby, inmates of the Reformatory who escaped through an air shaft early last month and fled in a stolen car. They were charged with operating a car without the owner's consent.

NATION READY TO TAKE 'FIRM STAND,' HE SAYS

Yonai Calls American Envoy's Speech 'Insult'; Hits Soviet Assistance for Chinese.

(By United Press)

TOKYO — Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, premier, told parliament today: "If the United States does not try to understand the true intentions of Japan and attempts to exert more pressure we are prepared to take a firm attitude."

Tado Matsumato, questioning Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita in the lower house, said that a speech which American Ambassador Joseph Clark Grew delivered before the recent expiration of the Japanese trade treaty insulted Japan because it implied that the United States was conversant, but Japan was not conversant, with the situation in China.

(In the speech Grew said frankly, at a luncheon at which many important Japanese were guests, that the United States did not like the course Japan was pursuing in China.)

Arita replied that he was not able to make public all the 600 incidents in China of which Grew had complained as having been against American interests.

He disclosed that he was "emphasizing" to Russia the importance of ceasing assistance to China.

Earlier Admiral Yonai had said that Japan was willing to accept Chinese government leaders, even Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, into this regime.

His statement was based on the possibility that the government might disintegrate due to undermining by the proposed "Central China government" which is to function in Japanese-occupied territory under Wang Ching-Wei, cissident Chinese leader.

Members of the Chinese government would be accepted as individuals, Yonai said.

Previously the position of the Japanese government had been, presumably, that it would not deal with the Chinese government and particularly with Generalissimo Chiang even in an individual capacity.

He said that the foreign concessions in China should be conducted "in accordance with the spirit" of Japan's "new order in East Asia" and that if foreign powers "wilfully obstruct Japanese progress in China, the Japanese government will take a determined attitude."

FAIR ENOUGH!

Pegler Finds Coincidence In Miami A. F. of L. Meet And Hoover's Accusation

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The news from Miami informs us that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor has been meeting there. This comes coincidentally with J. Edgar Hoover's recent announcement that the criminal scum of the country was assembling there again for its winter social and professional season.

Does this mean that I intend to identify some members of the American Federation of Labor with criminal scum?

But yes. What else could I mean? Lest there be any doubt about it, perhaps I should say in so many words that some criminal scum of the country hold high office in the American Federation of Labor and many subsidiary offices, and point out that, although the executive council in the current session has had much to say about the faults of the national government and other matters, it has thus far taken no notice of the activities of criminal scum in its own affairs.

If the American Federation of Labor had taken any objection to criminal scum it would have taken occasion a long time ago, and certainly could have found no more effective occasion than the present meeting, to issue some expression against criminal scum in the labor movement.

This would require no revision of the Federation's constitution, but it would require a drastic revision of the Federation's policy and morals. The Constitution does not forbid resolutions on any topic, but the policy and morality go, and thus the executive council's silence on one subject is much more resounding and expressive of the Federation's character than all of the official utterances which have come forth.

* * *

Although no news has come through regarding any activity of Mr. George Scalese, the distinguished Brooklyn mackerel who is president of one of the big international unions of the Federation, it may be assumed that he has been giving the labor movement, as represented by the A. F. of L., the benefit of his wisdom and character.

For it was announced in Chicago, just after Mr. Scalese received a vote of confidence from his own executive group, that he was boarding a plane at once to bear him to Miami. There were snows and cold winds in New York at the time, and it was not necessary for Mr. Scalese to return home.

He has thousands of scrub women who toil on their knees in the office buildings at night, scouring floors and spittoons; thousands of Scandinavian window washers who dangle on straps in the high winds on tall buildings; thousands of elevator men and porters all working to provide him with the means to dally in the land of the criminal scum, and the Chicago vote of confidence was intended to confirm his right to their contributions.

And actively on the job in New York to enforce the collections and allot, or sell, the jobs he has an alert and able staff, including, as we shall see, some more of the criminal scum of the American Federation of Labor.

It is unfortunate that Mr. Hoover did not elaborate on his mention of the scum, for it would be interesting to read a social directory of Miami and Miami Beach giving the names and addresses and police and criminal records of the colony which has transformed the community into the winter headquarters of the most illustrious and vicious racketeers out of prison.

Their press agents regularly advertise the dives which are operated by members of this colony, but never are the scum identified plainly as scum, being commonly referred to as sportsmen.

Mr. Hoover, had he cared to, might have let the householders and other visitors know who their neighbors were, including not only their street numbers but the numbers of their records in the files of the F. B. I.

The Miamas are strangely sluggish in this phase of their publicity by contrast with other resorts which always get up lists of their noted sojourners with a paragraph or more on the background of each.

Of course, it is important to know how the executive council of the American Federation of Labor stands on the New Deal, the labor relations board, industry and recovery, and perhaps it is unnecessary to make any statement of policy on the subject of criminal scum. The roster of union officials in and under the A. F. of L. provides the answer. The A. F. of L. welcomes and defends some criminal scum.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Eddie Cantor and girls—they've stuck together through the years in his screen works as well as in his jokes about his daughters.

Eddie Cantor has girls—forty of 'em—in his new picture, first in two and a half years. The title is "Forty Little Mothers," and therein lies the difference.

The girls in the previous Cantor musical spectacles were dancing girls. These, now, are schoolgirls and the picture isn't musical although Eddie sings a couple of songs. It's straight, human-interest comedy. No choruses, no big "production" numbers, no half-million-dollar sets. Just Cantor, playing a character who isn't Cantor, and the forty schoolgirls, and a baby.

It's a story Eddie likes. He saw it first, on a visit to New York with his wife Ida, when they dropped into a movie house. "Forty Little Mothers," a French film, was playing. Eddie fell in love with it, asked M-G-M to buy it for him.

His long film inactivity, the rapidly-grieving Eddie explains this way: "I could've made a picture every six months all this time if I hadn't been particular about the picture. But when a man has a family, he likes to have the family speak to him after the preview."

* * *

Those who don't remember all the grief over the Hedy Lamarr-Spencer Tracy picture, "I Take This Woman," won't get the chuckle a Pasadena sneak preview audience did over this mishap. The picture was made, shelved in its entirety. The preview showing was preceded by a newsreel of the Rosebowl football game. The reel was cut short with a Southern California touchdown, and "I Take This Woman" flashed on. The newsreel announcer, however, stayed on his soundtrack with: "And they're going to try to make this one good!"

Try this formula for Romance-with-Peace. It's Virginia Dale's. Virginia has a date with George Vogt, automobile agency man, twice a week. Let her tell it: "George likes the fights, so he buys a ticket to them. I go to a movie, because I don't like fights very much, and I guess I'm Hollywood's biggest paying fan for movies. It's the same on the night of the wrestling shows; George goes there, and I see another movie. Then we meet afterward, and eat supper together, and neither of us is ever bored."

* * *

You can kid all you like about Hollywood's bum guesses and faux pas in story material, but you have to take the hat off to its technical prowess.

Typical of their sangfroid was this incident outside the Warner construction shops, where in recent weeks have been building life-size reproductions of the sailing ships Falcon and Madre de Dios for use in Errol Flynn's "The Sea Hawk."

Knowing that these boats will be used on the new "sea" stage and therefore must be hauled through the shop doors, a bystander glanced up at the tall masts and whistled: "What about clearance?" he asked.

A carpenter looked up, grunted, and shrugged: "Clearance, huh? Well, there's a sixteenth of an inch clearance there—what more do you want?"

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL,
News-Journal Sports Editor.

THE greatest gold-digger of all-time was George Herman Ruth more commonly known to the baseball populace as Babe and the Bambino.

Baseball's holdouts in this day and age are pikers when their demands are compared with the former Yankee outfielder's.

It was just 10 years ago that Ruth startled the baseball world by getting the late Col. Jake Ruppert's signature on a two-year contract calling for $80,000 a season.

Needless to say that's the biggest salary in baseball history. No player or manager will draw half as much this year.

Ruth's holdouts and eventual agreements were staged with all the deftness of a broadway theatrical production. The first act saw Ruth receive an offer from the Colonel and disdainfully fling it back. In several scenes of the second act, Ruth would be shown holding his ground and threatening to quit baseball. The Colonel held just as firmly in his stand.

Ruth would not get a copper cent above Ruppert's original offer. Then in the final act, Ruth and Ruppert would meet, apparently in an entirely accidental manner, under Florida's warm sun.

* * *

Of course, it was just a mere coincidence that a battery of cameramen happened to pass by and shoot the Colonel and the Babe in a dozen assorted poses as they smilingly agreed upon terms.

* * *

DiMaggio, Greenberg High This Year.

BOTH players and club owners are reluctant to discuss salaries but from reports drifting around it appears that Joe DiMaggio or Han Greenberg likely will be the top paid performers in 1940.

DiMaggio, who probably got around $27,500 last year, is due for a raise while Greenberg whose home run production fell off in 1939, probably will be slashed. The Detroit veteran, who likely will leave first base for the outfield this year, supposedly gathered around $40,000 in salary and bonus after his four-base splurge in 1938.

* * *

The Yankees likely offered Di Maggio $80,000 but he probably will get a bit more. Word from Detroit is that Hank will be given between $25,000 and $30,000 with a good sized bonus to kick his total higher if he has a big year.

Bob Feller should top all pitchers with his $27,500 figure.

* * *

Here Are Members of All-Greenback Team.

BASED on unofficial reports the the highest paid players for 1940 by positions should read something like this:

Pitcher - Bob Feller, Cleveland, $27,500.

Catcher - Bill Dickey, New York Yankees, and Gabby Hartnett, Chicago Cubs, around $25,000. (Part of Gabby's pay comes from managing the Cubs.)

First base, Jimmy Foxx, Boston $20,000 up.

Second base, Charles Gehringer, Detroit, $18,000.

Third base, Red Rolfe, Yankees, $17,000.

Shortstop, Joe Cronin, Boston Red Sox, $25,000 and Luke Appling, Chicago White Sox, $18,000. (Part of Cronin's pay comes from managing the Red Sox.)

BORAH 'MYTHS' DESCRIBED BY WRITER-FRIEND

Tags of 'Lone Wolf' and That He Left Moves Unfinished Without Factual Basis.

(Editor's Note: The following is the 16th and concluding articles in a series on the late Senator Borah by his close newspaper friend, William K. Hutchinson, International News Service.)

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

WASHINGTON—William Edgar Borah, his decisions, his public and private life were dominated by the finest sense of personal integrity I met in a quarter century of newspaper reporting.

In his public career, he strode the straight and narrow path of political integrity. His private life was an open book.

He took success modestly, without regret. In each case, he fought to the best of his ability. No threat could deviate him from what he believed to be his duty. He never sought personal glory.

Two myths grew up around Borah, which were without basis of fact. One was that he acted as a "lone wolf;" the other that "he never went through with anything."

The "lone wolf" myth developed from his isolation stand in the league of nations battle. All his opposition colleagues favored a substitute for the Wilson league of nations plan. Borah constantly demanded the issue be "settled on its merits" without recourse to substitutes. Once his colleagues at an opposition conclave demanded he go along with them, because "everybody is for the league in one form or another."

"Well, I'm not," said Borah and gave birth to the myth.

Stand In Background.

It was a myth as any senatorial colleague of Borah can testify he lived to do battle from the shadows, while others carried the flags, but he fought valiantly. He was an easy man to collaborate with, because he persisted in letting others bask in the bright lights of publicity. His insistence that Senator Hiram W. Johnson, a junior colleague, lead the world court battle and his attitude throughout the more recent supreme court fight give eloquent tribute to his modesty—and to his political sagacity.

In losing causes, he often times took the leadership. Then he might appear as a "lone wolf" but only because no one else would accept the leadership. Many times I asked him:

"Why were you out in front that time?"

"Because nobody else would carry the flag," would be his reply.

The libel that "he never went through with anything" began in 1912 when he refused to follow Theodore Roosevelt into a third party. It was said he pledged T. R. support in a third party. This he forever denied and not even T. R. himself, before his death, dared contradict him. Borah often said, publicly and privately, he had warned T. R. against a third party and told him in advance he (Borah) would not quit the Republican party under any circumstances.

This libel was revived in late 1927. All that summer, Borah told newspapermen he would introduce a resolution to withdraw marines from Nicaragua. When congress reconvened, Borah did not sponsor the withdrawal, and on the contrary, voted against such a resolution when a colleague introduced it.

Here are the reasons. After Borah made his declaration but before congress met, President Coolidge sent Harry L. Stimson to Nicaragua to negotiate a free election for early in 1928 under marine supervision. All factions in Nicaragua agreed to this "peace." So Borah switched sides in belief the election would restore democracy and bring peace to Nicaragua. The election was held, peace restored and the marines eventually evacuated. But Borah was condemned for switching sides and he observed to me:

"Its the price I have to pay for following my convictions."

Borah loved to see strong men win public acclaim. He was unstinting in praising courageous colleagues. But forever insisted the public should know where he stood on public questions.

One hot summer afternoon, years ago before the senate was air-cooled, Borah made a two hour speech on some forgotten issue only to be defeated by an overwhelming and wholly anticipated vote. I chided him later that day, as he lay exhausted in his office:

"You're killing yourself over a trivial issue. Why go in there and make a long speech in this terrible weather when you and everybody else knew you were going to get a hell of a licking?"

"I didn't make that speech for the senate," he replied. "I made it for posterity. There will never be any doubt where Borah stood on the issue."

The best summation of his philosophy, in his own words, was:

"I would sooner lose in a right cause than win in a wrong cause. As long as I can distinguish between right and wrong, I shall do what I believe to be right—whatever the consequences."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour off two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

ASKS ADVANCE

County Seeks $10,000 in First Half Tax Receipts.

The county today sought a $10,000 advance against the first-half real estate tax collection for operating and election expenses, but it will have to wait until the treasurer collects $35,000 in taxes to get the money.

County commissioners passed a resolution requesting the advance draw as soon as the funds are available, and Treasurer John E. Kolb expected to have the required $35,000 before the end of the week. He had collected $18,000 this morning and the collection has just started.

Officials pointed out that the advance cannot be made until enough has been collected to cover the county's share of the receipts which is only a small part of the total.

With a general fund balance of only $6,000, the county must pay its regular operating expenses totaling nearly $10,000 and meet the cost of two special congressional elections this month, expected to total about $11,000, Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Beck said.

METAL STOCKS PACE GENERAL PRICE ADVANCE

Commodities Hold Positions Gained in Last Rally; Bonds Up Slightly.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks gained slightly today under the influence of a narrow trickle of buying orders, with metals leading the market.

The advancing issues included American Smelting, Kennecott, International Nickel, Deere, Bendix Aviation, Monsanto Chemical, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, American Can, and DuPont.

Bonds showed slight gains. Commodities were uneven, but generally held most of the gains made in yesterday's rally. Foreign markets were dull with prices unchanged.

A leading commission house said "a base that has been about three weeks in the making" gave opportunity for a "temparary upswing in some classifications."

Traders saw additional indications of the present recession of industrial activity from the December high in the Edison Electric Institute's report of declining electric power production last week.

The institute said the output declined 1 per cent to 2,541,358,000 kilowatt hours in the third consecutive week of reduction. Nevertheless, the report had its cheering side, too, for the output was 11.1 per cent higher than in the like 1939 week.

Dies Probers Map Quiz of Leader of 'Silver Shirts'

PELLEY GIVES UP SELF, FACES PAROLE COUNT

Kept Under Surveillance as Committee Prepares to Place Him on Stand.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Dies committee investigators kept William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirts leader, under surveillance today while committee members mapped plans to place him on the witness stand for a thorough inquiry into his activities.

Pelley, who voluntarily surrendered to the committee yesterday after months in hiding, was questioned this morning by committee investigators preparatory to a public hearing slated to be held within the next 24 hours.

Meanwhile, Rep. Thomas (R., N. J.), a committee member, said that he favored retaining Stephen F. Chadwick, Seattle lawyer and former national commander of the American Legion, as committee counsel. A vacancy was created by the resignation of Rhea Whitley, former G-man, who held the post last year.

Pelley, held under a committee subpoena, will, according to committee members, probably be turned over to North Carolina authorities after the committee has completed its examination of him. He is wanted in North Carolina for violation of a parole under a blue sky law conviction.

Pelley's spectacular surrender, after evading the committee for months, and his testimony before the house rules committee, paved the way for the final chapter in the bitter house battle over the alleged plot to "ruin" the character of Chairman Martin Dies and "smear" the committee.

Rep. Frank E. Hook (D., Mich.) expressing "deep regret," obtained permission from the house to withdraw from its records a speech he inserted Jan. 22 on the ground that it was based on forged documents. In this speech Hook attacked Dies.

Hook told the house that he was convinced that the leters purportedly signed by Pelley and seeking to link Dies with him, were bogus. The letter, the committee announced, were purchased by Harold Weisberg from David D. Mayne for $105. Weisberg said that Gardner Jackson, legislative agent for labor's Non-Partisan league, furnished the money.

"If the integrity of the house has been impugned or anyone has been aggrieved I would not be too small to apologize," said Hook.

TRAFFIC CREEPS ON ICY STREETS

Rain Freezes, Leaves Roads in Hazardous Condition; 9 Crashes Reported.

Freezing slush and rain last night played havoc with traffic and kept city and county trucks working throughout the night. Eight county trucks and 16 men, and four city trucks, manned by ten street workers, were still on the job today.

Last night's light rain froze as it fell, leaving highways in northern Ohio and in this vicinity in a hazardous condition, especially where there were slight inclines and curves.

There seemed to be no immediate relief from the slippery roads in view, as the weather forecast is for light snows and no change in temperature. The temperature dropped to 23 during the night, but registered 25 at noon today.

While there were innumerable minor accidents over the city as the result of the ice-coated streets last night, only nine were reported to police and none of these were serious.

State highway patrol officers reported several tie-ups in traffic on nearby highways last night, but only one accident that caused even minor injuries. Miss Frances Kohler, 19, R. D. 2, Mansfield, was treated for head lacerations in Ashland yesterday afternoon after her car went into the ditch while attempting to swerve out of the path of a truck on route 42, in Ashland county.

A freak skid on route 221 caused a truck and trailer to jackknife. Archie Wright, Detroit, was driving a truck for the Reliable Stone company and in attempting to pass a stalled truck, the wheels of his truck cab went into a side skid, turned backward and crashed into its own trailer. No one was injured.

SCOUTS TO 'TAKE OVER' CITY TOMORROW AS BIG WEEK OPENS

Mansfield will be in the hands of a new regime tomorrow when 18 Boy Scouts take over the city government as local scouts join in the observance of National Boy Scout week and the 30th anniversary of the founding of the scouting movement.

In the evening, scouts of the Mansfield district will join at scout headquarters in the Elks building for a district rally and local court of honor. It is scheduled for 7:45.

Seventeen-year-old Richard Weaver, an Eagle scout of troop No. 2 will be the scout mayor. Mayor W. J. Locke will be on hand to "advise" him in "running" of the city.

Other scouts who will be in Weaver's official family will be: Robert Burns, service-safety director; Ralph Hill, municipal judge; Lee Adams, auditor; William Maxwell, city solicitor; Robert Stevenson, city engineer; Fred Morey, fire chief, and Morton Frankel, chief of police.

Scout councilmen met last night with city councilmen at city hall for a regular council meeting.

Advancements in the ranks of first and second classes, and presentation of merit badges will be made during the court of honor to be presided over by J. Leo Hartmann, chairman.

The rally, following the court of honor, will officially open Boy Scout week in Mansfield. L. A. Ott, president of the Johnny Appleseed Area, will speak to the scouts on "Twenty Years of Council Scouting." H. H. Miller of the Lincoln National Life insurance company will speak on "Lincoln, the Boy," and a motion picture, "Here Comes the Mail," will be shown. Philip Smith, area commissioner, will lead the scouts in their annual recommittment ceremony.

ACTS ON GALION SCHOOL FUNDS

Board OK's $112,136 to Run City's Schools; $34,537 Set Up for Debts.

GALION — The appropriation bill for 1940 was passed Tuesday night at a meeting of the Galion Board of Education. This appropriates a total of $112,136.62 in the general fund as against $119,175.77 for 1939. Debt service, bonds and interest for 1940, was estimated at $34,537.50, as against $29,383.21 for 1939.

The grand total appropriated for 1940 included both funds, general and debt, amounts to $145,117.50 as compared with $148,558.98 for 1939.

An estimate of resources from the county auditor is $155,279.50.

A financial report by Clerk Harry Sanderlin showed that expenditures during the past year amounted to $155,483.98, general and debt, while the receipts for the past year totaled $159,915.51.

The balance in the school's funds for Feb. 1, was $4,341.99, and the clerk was instructed by the board to ask for an advance draw from the county auditor. Before Mar. 1, a check from the state will be due, to add to the balance.

Bills approved by the board for payment amounted to $2,600.

In the absence of the president, Dr. P. A. Murr, and vice president, Louise John, the meeting was presided over by Dr. Clarence Adams.

The board authorized Miss John to sign checks in the absence of Dr. Murr.

It was reported that the board received a reimbursement on insurance of buildings in the amount of $400. This is a savings on premiums which the board earned by improving buildings in such a manner to lessen fire hazards.

crews to Finland, replied that Britain already was sending planes and that he understood fliers were available in Finland.

The house cheered Major General Sir Alfred Knox, conservative, when he asked if every possible step was being taken to send aid quickly to Finland, who, he said, was fighting for the whole of civilization.

Butler recalled that Prime Minister Chamberlain said yesterday that the government realized the urgency of the question.

Finns Drive Back Reds In Four Attacks.

(By United Press)

HELSINKI—An official communique today said that four violent Red army attacks on the Summa sector of the Mannerheim line had been repulsed by the Finns and that the Russians suffered heavy losses.

The communique also said that Russian ski battalions were dispersed northeast of Lake Ladoga and that a total of 1,800 Russians had been killed in fighting there and in the Kuhmo sector on the south central front.

About 300 Russian troops were killed in the fighting northeast of Lake Ladoga, the communique said in reference to the important sector where the 18th Russian division recently had been reported desperately trying to break through Finnish lines to avoid isolation from its base.

Another 1,500 are dead in fighting on the Kuhmo front, north of the lake, accomding to the communique.

Fighting continues in the Kuhmo sector on the southeastern Mannerheim line front, where the Finns yesterday destroyed 20 Russian tanks.

The communique covered yesterday's fighting, but new attacks were launched today on the Mannerheim line by reinforced Russian troops which now have shorter and better communication lines to Leningrad.

Dispatches from the front said the Russians, in what the Finns regarded as the second battle of the Mannerheim line, made vicious attacks in clear, sub-zero cold against fortified Finnish positions.

As the battle developed it became clear that the Russians were supported by the largest concentrations of guns and manpower the Soviet commanders have had to date. It was apparent that the Red commanders, balked in their efforts to get around the top of Lake Ladoga and flank the Mannerheim line, have staked heavily on an attempt to break through it.

The stronger Russian troops have two railroad lines to Leningrad behind them. They also have several good roads for their supply trains. Thus they are able to concentrate larger forces and supplies on the isthmus and to relieve their troops when they are exhausted at a faster rate than at any other point on the whole front.

Because of the better communications it was believed the Russians had decided to attack precisely where the Finns are in the strongest position. The Finns regarded the current attack as the strongest Russian offensive of the war.

Coincident with increased ground activity the Russians have expanded their operations in the air.

In bombing raids behind the Finnish lines they now are using a new device for scattering small incendiary bombs to burn Finnish towns, which are constructed largely of wood. The incendiary bombs are contained in a large cylinder. As it nears the ground the sides of the cylinder open automatically and the small incendiary bombs scatter over a wide area.

Nazis Deny Military Pact With Russia.

BERLIN — (AP) — Authorized German sources declared today that no military agreement whatever exists between Germany and Soviet Russia.

This statement was made to counteract reports that military or technical aid was being given Russia in the war against Finland.

"The reich never has been asked for military assistance or technical aid of a military character and no agreement exists for extending such help," these sources said.

Reports received here had indicated that part of the Russian strategy was to frighten the Finns by holding up the prospect of German intercession on the Russian side.

Yesterday authorized informants said the German government had decided there was no basis for mediation in the Russian-Finnish conflict. This decision, it was stated, was reached after the German envoys to Moscow and Helsinki had returned here to make personal reports on the situation.

LOCKE HOLDS UP SURPRISE BILL

Withholds Okay on Measure to Cut Police Week, Passed By Vote of 7 to 2.

newly created traffic committee, which was expected to seek additional policemen for the creation of a traffic bureau in the department contended that he knew "nothing" about the measure or where it came from.

In Hopper Several months.

He said it had been in council's hopper for the past several months and that he brought it up to dispose of the matter.

City Solicitor Marion D Ward also expressed ignorance as to where the idea had originated.

He "remembered" however, that "one of the policemen" had come to him several months ago and asked for the legislation. He said he drafted the measure after "one of the councilmen" promised to sponsor it.

Passage of the bill was obtained only after a lengthy debate in which at least four of the council members and Chief Bates participated.

Shultz opposed the measure on the grounds that it would further reduce the number of officers on duty at a time when more men were being sought for the department.

Shultz charged that it wasn't "consistent" with the requests Bates had made for additional men.

The chief explained that he had known nothing about the request until it had come to his attention several weeks ago "over the grapevine."

"I'll agree that it is an inopportune time to make such a demand but naturally I'm interested in bettering conditions for the men in the department," he explained.

"What we should have first is more police and then improve working conditions."

Bates told council that passage of the bill would "seriously cripple" the department at the present time.

Smith Argues for Bill.

Smith argued that passage of the ordinance would not result in less men or injure the efficiency of the force.

Locke then pointed out that every sixth day off would result in the loss of 536 man days a year, or the loss of one and a half men per day.

Shultz said the fire department for the past five months has been entitled to a reduced 72-hour work week established by state law last year but that council had not been able to finance the hiring of additional men necessary to reduce the hours from 84 a week.

ASHBROOK AND M'GREGOR OPEN DRIVE FOR VOTES

Congressional Nominees Easy Winners as District Casts Unusually Light Vote.

403 votes. Two Democratic "favorite sons," Cave and Arneson, carried Richland and Delaware counties, respectively.

Virtually unknown in politics, Ashbrook found his name a valuable asset since his uncle, the late Congressman Ashbrook, had been elected 10 times in the 17th district and was virtually unbeatable.

The younger Ashbrook was closely associated with his uncle in business and is one of the executors of his estate. He succeeded the late congressman as president of the Johnstown Federal Savings and Loan company and the Johnstown bank.

Cave, who was defeated for the nomination by the late Mr. Ashbrook in the 1938 primary, carried Richland county by a vote of 883 to 659 over the younger Ashbrook. He ran fourth in the district.

Arneson who ran third, is a professor in political science at Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware. Ferenbaugh, a Danville attorney, polled only four votes in Delaware county.

Serving Third Term.

McGregor, the Republican nominee, is serving his third term in the Ohio house of representatives. He has been in the lumber and contracting business at West Lafayette. Coshocton county, for 20 years and a member of the board of education there for nine years.

Col. Dockery, a retired army officer, was in the G.O.P. primary race for congress in 1938 but lost to Woodward, the Richland county entry. Woodward then lost to the late Congressman Ashbrook by about 5,500 votes.

Republicans out-voted the Democrats in the district Tuesday, 13,767 to 10,438. Total vote was 24,205 as compared with 53,527 in the primary in 1938 and 97,905 in the general election two years ago.

In Richland county there were 4,438 votes cast, about 40 per cent of the normal primary vote and only 62 votes less than The News-Journal forecast at noon yesterday.

Republicans cast 318 more votes than the Democrats in Richland county, with 2,378 Republicans voting as compared with 2,060 Democrats.

While Richland countians were casting only 4,438 votes, 7,293 went to the polls in Licking county which had three candidates in the two contests, Ashbrook, Dockery and McDonald. The Ashland county vote was 2,551, smallest in the district. Ashland was the only county, however, that had no candidate.

Home Communities Loyal.

For the most part, the candidates' own communities were loyal to them in Tuesday's voting. Of the 257 Democratic votes cast in Ashbrook's home township in Licking county, he polled 232. Cave got 30 of the 32 Democratic votes in precinct A of Springfield township, his home community, and Woodward polled 63 of the 76 Republican votes in his home precinct, C in Jefferson township.

Due to the light vote cast, returns began to reach the county board of elections by 7 p. m., a half hour after the polls closed, and by 8:45 the tabulation was completed.

By 10 p. m. all of the counties in the district had submitted complete returns to the Richland county board which was the central body by virtue of the county having the largest population of any in the district.

First precinct in Richland county to complete its tabulation and report to the election board was C of the Sixth ward in Mansfield. Its 38 votes were counted and the tabulation sheet was delivered to the election board by 7 o'clock.

Average 47 Votes to Precinct

Only 2,393 ballots were cast in Mansfield, an average of slightly more than 47 per precinct. Precinct B of the Third ward had only 25 votes cast while the balloting was heaviest in the Republican Second ward with 83 ballots marked in precinct B of that ward.

The congressman elected Feb. 27 will serve only until the first of 1941 unless he is successful in the general election next November. The candidate elected then will serve the regular two-year term, taking office Jan. 3, 1941.

Yesterday's special primary and the election Feb. 27 were called by Gov. John W. Bricker against the protests of Democratic officials and party leaders throughout the 17th district who contended that the cost would be too great for the length of time the congressman will serve.

The late Congressman Ashbrook died unexpectedly six weeks ago after serving the district in congress for 19 years. His death and that of Congressmen Chester Bolton in the 22nd district in northeastern Ohio resulted in calling of the special elections in the districts.

Polls Heavy Vote In 22nd.

In the 22nd, Mrs. Frances Payne Bolton, widow of Congressman Bolton, will be opposed in the election, Feb. 27, by Former Congressman Anthony J. Fleger, Parma, Democrat.

Mrs. Bolton, although unopposed, got more votes than both the Democratic contestants in the traditional Republican district. She received an unofficial total of 10,334. Fleger far outdistanced his opponent, Merritt A. Vickery, of Lakewood, 7,711 to 1,929.

Republican leaders hailed the heavy G. O. P. vote as an indication they would win both seats in the special election.

"It is significant," said Republican State Chairman Ed D. Schorr, "that in both districts, Republicans polled larger votes than did the Democrats, even though Mrs. Bolton, the Republican candiadte in the 22nd, had no opposition."

THREE LINKED TO OHIO MURDER

Roomer, Wife and Son Held in Slaying of Railroad Telegraph Operator.

Jenkins, learning from newspaper accounts that he wore a lodge ring similar to that of her husband, telephoned the sheriff at Dayton. Identification was announced after the widow and a brother-in-law, Carl C. Jenkins, of Huntsville, viewed the body.

Slater is the son of Oral Slater, of Covington, Ky. He and Merlin entered Miami university last fall but left after one semester, Smith said. Since that time, Slater has roomed at the Jenkins' home.

Mrs. Jenkins, her son and Slater were taken into custody at their home and brought to Bellefontaine for questioning early today. A daughter, Joan, 14, also was questioned but no charges will be filed against her, Prosecutor Smith said.

Jenkins was a telegrapher for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and was stationed in Dayton. He drove to and from work.

BANK NAMED IN ESTATE SUIT

Asks Court to Terminate Trust, Pay Central Methodist Church $771.

Action to terminate a trust for the Central Methodist church, Mansfield, and to require the Farmers Savings and Trust company as executor to pay the church $771 had been filed in common pleas court today by E S. Nail, chairman of the church board.

The church board contends in its petition that it is entitled to $771 from the estate of the late Emma B. Nail, under a provision of her will, the funds are held by the Farmers Savings and Trust company which declined to serve as trustee because the amount is not large enough, the petition states.

The will set up a $3,000 bequest to the church to be held in trust by the Farmers Savings and Trust company. Assets of the estate were insufficient, however, to pay the full amount of the bequest.

An order handed down in common pleas court several weeks ago instructed the bank to pro-rate the assets of the estate, but the order has not been complied with, the petition states.

One trouble with Japan is that it has learned so much of its international morality from western civilization.

Word comes that an Illinois judge settled a divorce case by flipping a coin—so the whole thing was probably a gamble.

High Cost of Needless Primaries

YESTERDAY'S primaries in the Seventeenth district, to choose party nominees for congress to fill the unexpired term of the late Congressman William A. Ashbrook, provide a convincing demonstration of needless waste of public money—and also show how a small minority of qualified voters are placed in position to control choice of candidates.

These special primaries, and the special election which is to come along on Tuesday, February 27, constitute an entirely unnecessary cost of many thousands of dollars to the taxpayers of the six counties of the Seventeenth district—for which responsibility rests on Governor Bricker for forcing this expense on the counties when all real needs would have been served by making nominations at the regular May primaries and electing a congressman in November.

In Richland county yesterday each vote cost taxpayers more than $1 and the expense of the special election will run almost as much as the primaries.

At the regular primaries in 1938, Democratic and Republican votes totaled 53,527 in the district while yesterday's total was considerably below half that number. And in the 1938 election 97,905 votes were cast for congressman, of which Mr. Ashbrook received 51,725 and Mr. Woodward 46,280, revealing the small percentage of voters in the district who participated in yesterday's choice of candidates.

Both of the candidates selected yesterday, however, were given decisive pluralities in the party contests and the decision as to which shall serve through the unexpired term of Congressman Ashbrook will be made in three weeks.

J. Harry McGregor, of Coshocton, the Republican nominee, won by a considerable majority over his two opponents, and Byron B. Ashbrook, of Johnstown, nephew of William A. Ashbrook, was well ahead of his nearest rival for the Democratic nomination.

At the regular primaries in May the whole procedure, in nominating candidates for congress, will be done over again—for election in November to the full two-year term that starts next January.

During the short campaign in advance of yesterday's primaries it was definitely stated by Mr. Ashbrook that he sought only the unexpired term of his deceased uncle, from which it appears that, should he be elected, the field will remain open for choice of some other Democrat for nomination to the full term.

The assumption also is that should Mr. McGregor win in the special election he will be an aspirant for the May nomination, with the field again opened for other entrants.

Vocational Work In High School

WHILE completion of Mansfield's two new junior high school buildings has attracted more than ordinary attention to these particular units in the city's public school system—there is another phase of school work that has been going along at Senior high school for a number of years without evidence of the general interest which its importance merits.

From a small beginning thirteen years ago, with only a few students enrolled, the vocational department of Senior high school has been developed in housing facilities and equipment until now it has an enrollment of almost two hundred students, with seven instructors.

The value of vocational training, and instruction in the industrial arts has become more generally recognized within the past decade as a means of preparing young people for some kind of work after leaving school.

Opportunity is provided for Mansfield people, either individually or in groups, to visit the shops which make up the vocational department at Senior high school—and an hour or two devoted to such an inspection tour will prove well worthwhile, either for parents or others interested in the public school system and the young people who are moving toward graduation.

Open Roads To Winter Fun

SNOW removal from highways in western states has jumped in cost with the development of skiing and other winter sports on such a large scale. The statistical engineer of the Idaho highway department reports the cost nearly doubled in his state.

Where the snow is the thickest, the passes highest and normal traffic least is the place where the army of skiers want the services of the giant snow plows. Some of these are routes formerly closed through the winter. Last year, to keep snow off the state's main highways only, the department used 250 to 500 men, 172 trucks, five tractors, nine tractor plows, 24 graders, 17 power shovels, and 1,228,410 feet of snow fence for preventing drifts. The cost rose in five years from $143,531 to $228,795. It had been $277,861 in the winter of 1937-38, but dropped a year later because the total snow fall was light.

All this is for the clearance of primary roads. The demand for opening other roads will push it up.

Maybe they'll have to make [illegible] for a special road-clearing fee or bring along [illegible] because of the work themselves.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The dinner and reunion of the 165th infantry (69th N. Y.) of the Rainbow Division and the preview showing of the motion picture "The Fighting 69th" was lots of fun.

If you can imagine a reunion of two thousand men in one big room, with an accompaniment of shouting, greeting, handshaking and back-slapping, together with the huzzahs and a dozen or so barbershop quartets, a regimental brass band, plus the noise 200 waiters were making, you will have some idea of what the affair was like. Governor Lehman and Pat O'Brien and James Cagney, and Colonel Donovan, and many people high in military and civil life were there, paying tribute to Father Duffy, famed priest of the 69th, whose statue today adorns Times Square.

The best impromptu speech of the night was by a Staten Island priest, Father John White, who clambered up to the stage, grabbed the microphone and yelled, "Listen, I'm a Catholic and I want all you Protestants to quiet down. If you don't I'm going to take up a collection."

* * *

THE 69th is a proud regiment and its history is studded with bold and gallant actions. It fought all through the War Between the States (notably Fredericksburg and Gettysburg), and it did plenty in France. It was its activities in the World war about which the film story unfolds, but as you will be seeing this yourself very shortly there is no need to unfold the plot here.

This was the regiment that had Joyce Kilmer, the poet, who wrote "Trees" and the well known "Rouge Bouquet," and Kilmer, like so many of his companions, died in France.

But perhaps the unusual thing of the night was the behavior of the high dignitaries, who frankly shame stage-struck 17-year-old kids when it comes to clamoring for autographs. Cagney was mobbed and eventually, under guard, led from the banquet hall. O'Brien wrote his fingers stiff. The regimental officers were mobbed by the men, and for awhile it seemed as if those officers of the fighting 69th—a little older now, a little rounder at the waist, and perhaps a little short of breath—would have to fall back to cover.

They rallied, however, in true 69th fashion, and spent a busy three hours scribbling their signatures on the backs of programs.

Who's The Forgotten Man?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WE DID a lot of good, wet weeping over the "Forgotten Man" way back at the beginning of the depression—and I'm proud to admit I was one of our heaviest weepers. If ever the Underdog needed all the help and pity he could get, it was then. And I cheered every honest effort to aid him. For I've been poor myself, most of my life—and I know what it does to you. Does things [illegible] that all the money on earth can't heal. Takes something out of you that even a new deal can't put back.

Yes, I certainly fell friendly to The Forgotten Man, back in '32. And I'm still feeling friendly. But I'm beginning to wonder a little just who The Forgotten Man is . . . and to suspect that maybe we've lost his address in the shuffle. Or have got him, perhaps, mixed up with someone entirely different.

One of the things that has got me suspicionin' and surmisin' is all this hullabaloo we're raising about John Steinbeck's book, "The Grapes of Wrath." Now, mind you, I've nothing against John himself. As an author, he can write circles around practically anything that walks . . . even without the dirty words. Moreover, I'm convinced he's done this whole nation a big favor by awakening us to realization of and pity for the weak and the lonely and the desperate.

Even if John Steinbeck hadn't done anything save supply inspiration for the touching and terrible film which Darryl Zanuck is about to release, he'd have achieved Plenty. For, by all signs and omens, that film will be one of the high marks in American history . . . for which we should be everlastingly grateful and humble. Yet with all due regard to everyone concerned, I've still got an urgent hankering. And it's this

I wish someone would start in where John left off, and remind us that the Joads aren't the only desperate folk these days and that maybe some others could use a little of the sympathy that's being sloshed so plentifully over the Migrants.

It's a great thing to see that sympathy, and I hope it keeps up. But while we're weeping over the Okies, how about giving a thought, now and then, to the Plain Pluggers who aren't part of any picturesque caravan . . . the tired, discouraged, hard-workin' people who just stay at home 'n' run the ranch 'n' tend the store and never get anything out of it but a lot of hard words and tax bills.

IN SHORT, HOW ABOUT GIVING A LITTLE KINDLY THOUGHT TO THE REAL "FORGOTTEN MAN" OF 1940—MR. JOHN Q. PUBLIC?

For, despite rumors to the contrary, it's no picnic to be A Regular Guy. It's a lot more fun to set your itching heel on the gas and head out for parts unknown than it is to stay put and face the goat-getting monotony and responsibility of Steady Life. Specially now.

Time was when a Solid Citizen got a little praise for being saving and industrious and a credit to the community. But unless you're totin' a roll of blankets and a leaky bucket, nowadays, you don't rate. Folks who pay their interest regular, in 1940, are considered just a cut below kidnapers 'n' hoss thieves. Fact is, it's gotten so you hardly dast have running water in the kitchen and an extra slice o' "sowbelly" in the woodshed, for fear you'll be tagged a "throat-cuttin' Fascist."

YES, THE "FORGOTTEN MAN" HAS SURE ENOUGH SHIFTED HIS ADDRESS. NO USE LOOKIN' FOR HIM IN THE HOBO "JUNGLE" ANY MORE . . . OR OUT IN THE POOR HOUSE. HE'S DOWN AT THE BANK TRYIN' TO SWAP HIS UPPER SET FOR A SIX MONTHS' EXTENSION ON HIS NOTE.

Timely Editorial

Popular Clamor That Isn't.

One of the important conclusions reached by Raymond Clapper after a month's travels about the country is the absence of any "firm demand that President Roosevelt run for a third term." On the contrary it is found by Mr. Clapper, who is friendly but open-minded toward the new deal, that some of the President's "most intelligent supporters" have "grave doubt that he should make the attempt."

This opinion accords not only with many other views of the question but with the independent poll showing that while Mr. Roosevelt remains a popular figure a majority of the people would vote against him on the third-term proposition. Even this doesn't settle it. But it is dependable evidence.

As a matter of fact all that we have on the other side is the clamor set up by a few inner ring new dealers, the Corcoran-Ickes group and a few resolutions adopted by organizations that carry no particular weight with the public.—Kansas City Star.

Health And Diet

Some Causes Of Fatigue.

—By DR. CLENDENING

WHAT is fatigue? Whence comes it? Where is it located? What is its seat? While it is a general body feeling, from what structures of the body or from what derangements does it arise?

We know the answers to these questions only approximately. It may be part of an organic disease, it may be due to bad habits, or it may occur in people "who are just naturally tired." It is the common symptom which the physician encounters.

Analyzing the nature of fatigue, it may be any one or a combination of the following feelings: A mild tendency to yawn or spells of actual yawning. Disinclination to move the muscles. Feeling of drowsiness. Perspiration without adequate exercise. Wobbliness of feet. Slouching in sitting or standing. Tendency to close the eyes from time to time. Difficulty in remembering just what has been said. Difficulty in relaxing. Unusual effort needed to start anything to read, write or work. Impatience or easy irritation.

Causes of Fatigue.

The causes of fatigue are:

(1) Physical Exertion. This, of course, is natural fatigue and is healthy. When the muscles are used, there is an accumulation of lactic acid and it has been supposed that other "fatigue substances" are accumulated in the body; this, however, has not been proved. Prevention of exertion fatigue can be accomplished by rest pauses. Industry on a wide scale is adopting this method.

(2) Nutrition—A great many people are on an inadequate total food intake or on the verge of semi-starvation without knowing it. In these people fatigue occurs and creates a vicious circle. Lack of adequate food intake induces fatigue; fatigue destroys appetite. Therefore, there is a recurrence of lack of adequate food intake.

(3) Inadequate Sleep—This results in frequent yawning during the day, difficulty in thinking along one line for any length of time, dream like ideas.

Factors in Environment.

(4) Environmental Factors—Light, noise, vibration and ventilation are the outstanding environmental factors as causes of fatigue. Insufficient light or glaring light are potent fatigue-breeders. Noise and vibration are the culprits in industry. One insurance company showed that when rooms used in clerical work were quieted, output increased by more than 10 per cent. Bad ventilation causes fatigue as much by the lack of movement of the air as by the temperature and humidity.

Psychological causes of fatigue are legion. Unsympathetic work, monotonous work, domestic unhappiness and many other causes exist.

The above may be called natural or functional causes of fatigue. Among organic causes of fatigue are anemia, focal infections, heart disease, tuberculosis and disturbance of the ductless glands.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—For some months a knock-down backstage fight has been raging between the United States government and the white-haired boy of U. S. aviation—Pan American Airways.

Pan American executives held a long conference with government officials last week and made considerable progress toward a settlement. The fight involves the use of German airplane pilots in Colombia, not far from the Panama Canal, on a Pan American subsidiary airline called SCADTA.

The fight also involves the allegation by war department officials that SCADTA gave German pilots an opportunity to become familiar with the topography adjacent to Panama. These officials assert that some of the pilots, after being kept in Colombia for a time, returned to Germany, letting new pilots take their places.

Thus the air attache of the German embassy in Washington, Peter Reidel, had experience in Colombian flying while working for this Pan American subsidiary. Thus also, the German fliers who made the non-stop flight across the Atlantic last summer had worked for the Colombian airline.

Pilots of German extraction flew planes in Colombia during a period when the prime tenet of U. S. foreign policy was to combat "Nazi-Fascist infiltration into Latin America." That is why the American Government interested itself in the situation.

* * *

Blocked Expansion.

TO GET the complete picture it is necessary to go back ten years to the time when Pan American Airways did an excellent job of blazing a new air trail through Latin America. At that time they found their path blocked by SCADTA, a line operated in Colombia by an Austrian named Peter Von Bauer, now a Colombian citizen.

In order to fly over Colombia to the west coast of South America, it was necessary finally for Pan American's president, Juan Trippe, to buy out SCADTA at rather a high price.

This set-up continued from 1931 until October, 1938, when Chamberlain's surrender of Czechoslovakia at Munich and Hitler's increased belligerency brought on increased war department worries regarding the proximity of German pilots to the Panama Canal.

U. S. army strategists pointed out that one well-placed bomb could smash the locks and put the canal out of commission for months.

President Roosevelt even went so far as to examine the possibility of taking over Swan Island from Costa Rica, and the Big Corn and Little Corn Islands from Nicaragua, to serve as additional air outposts to guard Panama.

* * *

CAA Investigates.

SO AT this point the state department, through its ambassador, Spruille Braden, began to do some sleuthing about these German pilots in Colombia. Ambassador Braden, however, had little success. It was difficult, at that time, to ascertain whether Pan American was responsible for the German pilots, or whether SCADTA was responsible.

Meantime the Civil Aeronautics Authority began examining the financial set-up of Pan American's Colombian subsidiary. It was found that Juan Trippe, as Pan American president, after buying 84 per cent of SCADTA's stock, had then turned around and handed 51 per cent of the stock back to SCADTA owner Von Bauer. The stock was placed in escrow, so that while Pan American actually owned it, the German manager could vote it.

* * *

German Pilots Continue.

UNDER that management arrangement, German pilots continued to fly the subsidiary line in Colombia. Trippe maintained that they had become Colombian citizens, many had married Colombian wives and were popular in Colombia, and were no danger to the canal. He pointed out that the German pilots on their regular routes were never closer than 250 miles from the Panama Canal.

High army officers pointed out, however, that a plane could get from Colombia to Panama in no time; and that the pilots were being trained over extremely difficult terrain around the Andes, thus creating a force which, even though returned to Germany, would always be familiar with this vital territory.

Pan American vice president George Rihl has now made three trips to Colombia and is working out a new set-up whereby German interest is to be eliminated completely. Under one proposal SCADTA is to be owned one-third by Pan American, one-third by the Colombian government, and one-third by a Colombian company.

A meeting was held in Colombia last week regarding this, and it is hoped the plan will go into operation soon, although some last-minute hitches have developed. Meanwhile German pilots still are operating planes adjacent to the Panama Canal, but they are always accompanied by Colombian flight officers.

Mechanical Sleuths.

UNIFORMED guards make nightly inspection rounds in the big government buildings, but the real sentinels of the multi-million dollar structures are electrical machines. Elaborate automatic signal systems, equipped with buzzers, bells and lights instantly detect trouble and flash the alarm.

Chief hazard is spontaneous-combustion fires in libraries, supply rooms and machine shops. When a blaze occurs an automatic control system flies into action. A chart in the guard room records the location of the flame and its intensity. If something breaks down in the power room, warning is flashed with a crash of bells.

Most modern of the automatic watchdogs is the system in the stately Greco-Roman federal reserve building on Constitution avenue. Its electrical controls make a written record of everything that goes on, with a special feature known as the "operator's delinquent system."

If the operator falls asleep or meets with an accident, red lights flash all over the building. The device also tattles on guards who fail to punch patrol boxes on time.

Note—All the guards and elevator operators in the federal reserve building are college students. They are the handsomest crew in Washington but their service is about the worst.

Generous Neighbor

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY NEIGHBOR who lives on the corner where two gravel roads meet is one of the most generous men I ever know. Two years ago he made a strong stock racked trailer—made it all himself. The end-gate could be unhooked at the top and laid down for a convenient way to load. Many farmers made their hitch to suit this trailer. Mine fit it splendidly.

When we moved, we inquired a week in advance about borrowing the trailer. "Yes, indeed," he said. "Let me know just when and I'll have it ready." When I came to get it, early one morning, I found him out hunting rabbits beside his house. He shot and a bounding cottontail stopped short and rolled into the roadside ditch.

"I've got two in the last ten minutes," he remarked. "Thought I'd better get out early, for a friend of mine wants to borrow this gun today and another neighbor is coming up to get the loan of my hunting coat."

I looked at him and smiled. "Are you sure somebody mightn't borrow your best shirt?" I asked.

"Nobody'd do anything like that, if they knew what I really had," was his quick retort. "I may be poor but I get a thrill out of letting friends use an article I possess. I have to borrow lots too, and I've never been turned down yet. It's a wonderful neighborhood, that way, and a fellow never knows when he may need help himself."

When my neighbor's son got under the land pulverizer and had to be taken to the hospital we went up and helped do chores. When their baby was born [illegible] was up there half a day. When I need a team or anything goes wrong at our house they help us out the same way.

"Don't you loan things to the wrong person sometimes?" I wanted to know.

"Yes—it's happened twice, out of 30 times or so. It seems to me it would be too bad to let two careless neighbors cheat a fellow out of neighboring with the other 28. And it's possible that fair dealing might even make better men out of off color ones."

This week I went back and borrowed that man's billygoat. He has reared it from a tiny kid and it should make a good parent for my own stock.

Bird Banding, Sparrows of Interest to Audubon Club

"BIRD BANDING" was the subject of the paper given by Mrs. H. C. McCutchan yesterday when Mrs. W. R. Hainer, 62 Bartley avenue, entertained members of the Audubon club. The first bird banding was done by Audubon in 1803 to find out whether birds return year after year to the same area. The hobby increased in popularity until 1920 when the United States Biological Survey took over the work.

It is against the law to band birds now without a permit, and only those who are qualified are issued permits. At present there are 400,000 birds banded in the United States and Canada. Records are kept in the department in Washington of speed of flight, migration routes and destinations. This information is used by aeronautical engineers.

Miss Josephine Doolittle gave the other paper which dealt with "The White-Crowned Sparrow." She named him the aristocrat of the sparrow family. He winters in the valley of Mexico, and summers in Labrador. His migrant period is in the spring, and he passes this part of the country in May. His song is similar to that of the meadowlark.

The next meeting of the club will be held March 5 with Mrs. S. A. Richardson, 124 Carpenter road. Mrs. Hugh Clark will have the paper on "Kites" and Mrs. Henry Paulson will talk on the "Field Sparrow."

IT DOESN'T really matter whether you're going south for a vacation soon, you've just returned from a sunny clime, or you merely want to rejuvenate your winter face, you'll be more than pleased with the new "Rico Red" make-up. . . . It's been introduced recently by a leading woman manufacturer of cosmetics—the powder is a dark rose-tan shade, while the rouge and lipstick are bright red. . . . The entire ensemble is just the thing for sun-tanned complexions or for a pleasant change of coloring to wear with the soft grays that are going to be so popular this spring.

Have you seen the clever Valentine packages that are on display in the downtown stores now for that special day next week? A French perfumer has tied up his most popular colognes in pale blue paper (figured with gay silhouettes, arrows and red hearts) and red satin ribbon for the occasion—and there's even a sentimental little card attached to bear the greetings of the day. . . . Now if you want to keep your Valentine guessing, you might send him (or her, as the case may be) one of those shower balls in the shape of a heart which has "My heart belongs to ?" printed in rose letters on the top. . . . Another cute package has a big red heart on the top with a verse to the effect that if the receiver doesn't care for the sender, he need only to open the box to see where he'll be—and what do you think is inside? A black eight-ball, which is really nothing more than a shower ball!

* * *

There's a grand new lipstick on the market just now, which has been made by a prominent nail polish house to harmonize with the shades of polish manufactured by the company. . . . The streamlined blue and silver cases contain shades ranging from Shy, a light rose to be worn with pastels, to Chilibean and Mahogany, which are dark rust and red hues. . . . These can be purchased separately, or in gay little silk purse pouches along with the nail polish. . . . The pouches come in navy and red, coral and aqua, black and fuchsia combinations.

* * *

ANOTHER new and entirely different make-up, designed by a New York cosmetologist, is Telecaste Red for blonds and brunettes. This make-up was orginally brought out to be worn by participants in television broadcasts, but it met with such widespread approval that it now has been introduced for popular use. It's dark and different, so perhaps you'd better have a look at it the very next time you're downtown shopping.

Speaking of soap, as we were a few paragraphs back, Pinocchio, and all the other characters of Walt Disney's new movie have taken form in soap to delight old and young alike. . . . These colorful little figures can be purchased individually, or in "volumes" containing several. . . . Incidentally, next to Pinocchio himself, one of the cutest of all these is Cleo, the fish—a bright orange bath ball with soulful blue eyes. . . . Other novelties in wrist and bath balls are gardenia, pine and carnation, which come in white, green and red with the respective flowers on the front as well as some with perky little faces painted on them. . . . Blue spruce soap is nice too, and something else new along this line is soap in the shape and scent of almonds with tiny gold leaves for a colorful touch.

IF YOUR HAIR is suffering from the continuous wear of hats this winter, as well as lack of sunshine, you can give it new highlights and life by using a fine new soapless oil shampoo and Blue Grass brilliantine, which doesn't make the hair greasy, but instead gives a desirable luster. . . . And a good remedy for rough, grimy hands is a thorough scrubbing with one of those new hand brushes and the use of a soothing hand cream—one of the finest of these comes in a tube and leaves a fine protective film on the hands, without being a bit sticky.

NEW ZEALAND TOPIC FOR STUDY AT CLUB

Miss Grace Courtney, Mrs. O. G. Place Give Papers Before Sorosis; Plan Washington Birthday Luncheon.

MISS BERTHA PATTERSON was hostess to the Mansfield Sorosis last night when Miss Grace Courtney gave the paper of the evening on New Zealand. She stated that the islands had developed since the 19th century into a land of unsurpassed beauty and splendor. In area the two island bodies are about the size of the state of Colorado.

The Fiordland of New Zealand is the national beauty spot, having been called the Switzerland of the Pacific. It consists of 200 miles of solid granite wall with volcanos, waterfalls and gysers. The country abounds in mineral springs and health resorts.

New Zealand is one of the most wide-awake and prosperous of countries, the speaker stated, with no illiteracy. She was the first to give women the vote, set up a state department of public health, establish a minimum wage for women and minors, grade food products, and arrange for old-age pensions.

The second paper of the evening was given by Mrs. O. G. Place on Mohican State park. The park was first used by the Indians, and later a Delaware village was established. It was made into a park in 1928, and now there are over 240,000 trees in the park which is one of the 12 state parks in Ohio.

At the close of the meeting roll call was answered with "beauty spots in Ohio." The next meeting will be the annual Washington's birthday party. This year the members will have a guest luncheon at the Women's Club Feb. 22 with the Misses Bertha and Sophie Ruess as hostesses. The members of the committee on arrangements are Mrs. E. D. Gibson, chairman, Mrs. W. E. Wygant, Miss Mollie Rhoads, Mrs. W. W. Purdy, Mrs. Della Bloor and Mrs. John Angle.

D. Hale, Mrs. A. T. Sneeringer, and Mrs. R. H. Nixon were the other guests. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Place, 100 Glenwood boulevard, March 5.

Mrs. Frank Loykovich and Mrs. James Herlihy were recipients of the awards, while prizes for five hundred went to Mrs. Esther Murphy and Mrs. Thomas O'Donnell. Mrs. Jerome Dillon also won a prize. Mrs. C. J. Kalbfleisch and her committee then served refreshments. The annual card tournament will be started following the business meeting on Feb. 19.

Delano Auxiliary Sets Dates For Coming Events

When 16 members of Delano auxiliary met at Delano hall last evening, they formulated plans for several future meetings. On Feb. 17, the group will sponsor a Valentine dance for members and guests at the hall, with Mrs. Edith Ogden in charge of arrangements. A demonstration at the Ohio Public Service company will be an event of Feb. 14, and on Feb. 20, there will be an all-day quilting session at the hall with a poke lunch at noon.

Mrs. Willa Shay presided at last evening's meeting, when Mrs. Carmel Long was welcomed as a new member. Luncheon was served during the social hour. The next regular meeting will be held at the hall on Feb. 20, following the all-day quilting.

Late Hours Worry Mother

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When I get a letter like the following, I sigh for the good old days when Lillian Russell was the leading glamour girl, and daughter spent her evenings at home entertaining her best young man in the back parlor, and about nine o'clock mother sent in a plate of ginger cookies and nice red apples for daughter and her "steady."

But "gone with the wind" are those days, and daughter now is likely to betake herself to a road-house to dance and the ginger cookies are replaced with dry martinis or old-fashioneds, or maybe three fingers of straight. Nerve-racking as it is, mother has got to talk to daughter not from the high plane of maternal experience to the young bud unfolding to womanhood, but as woman to woman. And her talk must be straight goods, the facts of life not overlooked.

The following is a letter from a lady full of anxiety over this mother-daughter problem:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I've been a reader of your column for twenty years or more and am bringing my problem to you, hoping your advice will help me. I have two children, a boy 21 and a girl who wil be 20 next month. I've a hard time making my daughter come home on time whenever she goes out with her boy or girl friends. I allow her five or six hours in which to have a good time, to which she answers: 'If you didn't tell me what time to come home, maybe I could make it.'

"The young man she goes out with is twelve years older than she is and has been used to going out with older women. My husband is the children's stepfather, but he is better to them than their own father ever was. In fact, my daughter has seen her own father only once, as we separated a month before she was born. She was reared by her grandparents and has a nice home with her stepfather and me.

"I realize that my own mother and father were pretty strict with me and I couldn't go out very often, but we are not that way with my children. We always welcome their friends at our home, because we want to know who they are. We take them on trips and to good cabarets, so that they may feel hospitable toward their young friends.

"So you see, my husband is really an exception when it comes to being a stepfather. I hate the word. He is so thoughtful and good and wants them to have everything and be happy. He has his own business, and is sending my boy through college.

"My son and daughter have never caused me any serious worry, but if you have any suggestions about my daughter staying out so late, I will be glad to follow them to the letter, because I trust you.

"ANXIOUS MOTHER."

It's difficult for women of our generation, yours and mine, to keep our daughters from doing what all other girls of her age are doing. You can't set her apart and make her different without doing her more harm than good with her own crowd. But you can talk to her as you would to a woman of your own age.

Theer is a wide difference between letting a girl go with her own crowd and giving her some personal liberty than denying her the privilege of having any dates at all. The wise modern mother, if she is shocked at the hours her daughter keeps, must try to conceal it, and do her best to teach the girl how to take care of herself in following this new pattern of life.

Among the new government publications, the department of public health has reprinted a very sensible pamphlet, "Sex Education in Secondary Schools." It's not a tract and I shall be very glad to put anyone in the way of getting this very good government publication if a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope is sent to me.

THEATERS

THE FAD for having big premieres away from Hollywood will give Port Huron, Mich., the opener on "Young Tom Edison." It will be held Saturday, the day before Edison's birthday. The film will arrive in Port Huron aboard an ancient woodburning train, which Henry Ford is having polished up for the occasion. Peddling gum and candy in the aisles will be a young news butcher, dressed exactly as was young Tom Edison when he served as "train butcher." And the butcher, as you may have guessed, will be none other than Mickey Rooney, who plays the youthful Edison role. However, realism will stop here, for Rooney will not set the baggage coach afire as did Edison in trying out his experiments.

Changed Shipping History.

Just a little more than a century ago, a little steamship ventured out of the port of London, bound for New York, the first ship to attempt crossing the vast Atlantic solely by power of steam. The voyage of that ship changed the maritime history of the world, and Hollywood used it as a pivotal fact in its dramatic "Rulers of the Sea," which opens today at the Ohio. Will Fyffe, English actor, is seen as the inventor of the steam engine. Romance and action is injected into the story by Douglas Fairbanks and Margaret Lockwood.

* * *

Intrigue and Romance.

An entirely different type of story is used in Sonja Henie's latest picture, "Everything Happens at Night," for although it still contains romance and laughter as have her preceding films, it revolves around a modern problem. A great statesman of Europe is in hiding in Switzerland, and his daughter, the world's greatest skater, attempts to get the real story before the world. International intrigue goes hand in hand with fancy skating. Ray Milland and Robert Cummings support the blond star. At the Madison.

* * *

Eddy at Ritz.

Nelson Eddy sings his way through love and adventure in "Let Freedom Ring," which is being shown at the Ritz. Edward Arnold and Virginia Bruce, Lionel Barrymore and Guy Kibbee are also in the cast. The story revolves around the fight of Iowa farmers against the encroachment of the railroads in the early 1880's. The second feature is equally interesting for it's the Leslie Howard-Ingrid Bergman picture, "Intermezzo: A Love Story."

* * *

Battle In the Desert.

One of the most spectacular scenes imaginable is that of the revolt of the Dervishes of the desert in "Four Feathers," an attraction at the Majestic. Stark realism has been used in this massacre scene, with vultures waiting to swoop on the dead after the battle. This Alexander Korda color film is one of the best of the films revolving around the British army in India. Also shown is "Lady of the Tropics" with Robert Taylor and Hedy Lamarr.

* * *

A Humorous Ghost.

Delving into the psychic world and turning it into gay comedy is a trick that could be done only in Hollywood, and this is what happens in "Topper Takes a Trip," a Park attraction. Constance Bennett is the "ghost" with a sense of humor who appears and disappears at will. Roland Young is seen again as Topper, the little fellow dominated by his wife. "Those High Grey Walls" has Walter Connolly and Onslow Stevens.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

My answer to Mary's question was swift.

"Yes, I want the new lines delivered in exactly the same fashion as the rest of the play," I said. "We can't take any chances of having Olina's report to her prospective step-father that you were very spirited in your rendition."

"Of course not," Mary assented. Then she added doubtfully: "But I'm not sure I can do that with new lines in which he has not rehearsed me."

"I can manage it," I said confidently. "On second thought, don't look at those lines until after I come back from seeing Olina. I won't be long. In the meantime, lie down and relax. Shut your eyes and doze off for a few minutes, if you can."

"But I can't," she protested. "You're one in a million, you know, being able to charge your physical and mental energy anew with naps so short a cat wouldn't own them. I'll stretch out. I'll relax. I'll even close my eyes, but I can't go to sleep, and there's no use promising you something I can't do."

"I'll be satisfied with the rest of the program," I said, going out of the door. I paused in the corridor to draw a deep breath and square my shoulders before going down to the suite which Olina shared with her mother. I did not expect any particular display of temperament, but Olina is a person of whom you are never sure, and I meant to be prepared for anything.

But I found her unusually docile, and knew that the reason was the presence of her mother. Queen Olga was busily knitting, her lap full of brightly colored wools, and I hastily forestalled her motion to rise and greet me.

"Don't get up!" I adjured her. "Indeed, I didn't come to see you at all, but your daughter. I have brought her the lines of her role."

"Oh-h!" Olina breathed. "How wonderful! May I see them?" She held out her hands eagerly.

"Olina!" Her mother's voice was low, but it had the touch of the whip-lash in it, and the girl let her hands drop to her sides.

"Yes, Maman," she said submissively.

"Please do not forget your training that way again," her mother said. "Mrs. Graham has kindly consented to do you this great favor, and you must not spoil it by impatience."

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Graham," Olina said prettily, and I took refuge from a situation embarrassing to me by saying: "Pray don't think of it again!" and then held out the abbreviated manuscript containing her lines.

"If you'll excuse us," I said to Queen Olga, "I'd like to go over these with Olina."

"But, of course," she said. "Would you rather I left?"

"Indeed no," I said emphatically. "I won't be a minute explaining these. But I would like to have them learned ready for recital in half an hour. If you could hear her recite them—"

"I shall be glad to do that," the queen said. "And she will be ready in the half hour. I know you would not ask it if it were not possible."

"It is entirely possible for a girl as intelligent as your daughter," I answered. Then after a few words of explanation to Olina I went back to Mary's room.

Mary, dutifully stretched out upon her bed, opened her eyes as I came into the room without knocking, for I had told her I would be back almost immediately.

"You see, I followed directions," she said. "Tell me, how did you get on with Sister Olina?"

She stopped short and looked at me wide-eyed.

"There's a thought!" she said. "Do you realize that when this marriage is pulled off, Olina will be Noel's sister and mine?"

Freud Made Great Contribution

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

FREUD made a valuable contribution to the world by showing the importance and persistence of early experiences of the child. Early impressions may persist even though we are not conscious that they do.

Herbert Spencer, the great English philosopher, said in his autobiography:

"My most vivid childish recollection . . . worth mentioning because of its psychological interest, is that of certain results caused in me by being left alone for the first time. Everyone was out save the nurse, who had been left in charge of me; and she presently seized the occasion to go out, too, locking up the house and leaving me by myself.

Bells Made Him Sad.

"On one evening every week, which happened to be the evening in question, it was a custom to ring a peal on the bells of the chief church in Derby . . . and while I was suffering the agonies of this first experience of solitude, its bells were merrily going. The effect was to establish in me so strong an association that all through the earlier part of my life, and even in adult years, I never heard these bells without a feeling of sadness coming over me."

I can understand this. When I was a boy on the farm, I remember that my maternal grandparents used to visit us on week-ends frequently. Always they left our home about 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Very fond of these grandparents, I always dreaded to see them go, and felt a melancholy sadness for a few hours after they had gone.

To this day, on Sunday afternoon, if I am not busy or amused, a strange feeling of depression may seize me which is as much like that Sunday afternoon sadness of my childhood as anything I can imagine.

Fears Paint.

The other day there came a letter from a young woman who wrote of her awful fear of turpentine and paint. She said her mother told her when she was a little girl that a neighbor woman, attempting to apply a lotion to her head, put turpentine on it by mistake and went insane. "Absurd," you say. None the less, it became a fixed belief by the child and lingered on. I trust my sympathetic letter to her helped her.

We children used to like the pears which fell from the trees between two hives of bees on our farm. We were told that if we bit our tongues good and hard, bees would not bother us. Twenty-five years later, while shaving, I suddenly bit my tongue and then noticed that the radiator had begun to buzz. To this day, when a bee buzzes suddenly near me, I bite my tongue and then know why afterwards. Yes, early childhood experiences and influences do persist.

Solving Current Problems.

Q. You so often urge us parents to read to the baby and young child. Do you have a selected list of such books?

A. Yes, and you may have it by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Q. How soon should I first take my baby to the dentist?

A. Not later than the age of two, following your doctor's advice, in the meanwhile, on proper foods to build up the child and especially to build his teeth.

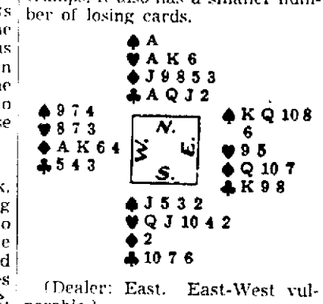
"The Authority on Authorities"

SET UP THE DUMMY

Most players are taught in their early days and soundly—that the normal play for a suit contract involves elimination of losing cards from the hand which contains the longer string of trumps. When they are eliminated, the rest of the cards are good. That applies generally, but sometimes it is better to reverse the process and perhaps set up the dummy because, though it has a shorter string of trumps, it also has a smaller number of losing cards.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

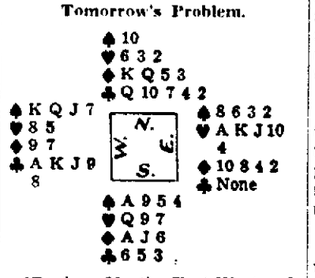
At one table of a duplicate game, North opened this deal with 1-Diamond, East bid 1-Spade, West 1-No Trump, North doubled, South bid 2-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.

West led the diamond K, then the A, which South ruffed. South then embarked on a plan to get rid of his spade losers. He took the spade A, re-entered his hand with a heart, ruffed one spade, re-entered his hand with a diamond ruff, trumped a second spade, ruffed another diamond, then his last spade, but wound up losing both a trump and a club, making barely four-odd.

At another table, after winning the second diamond, South got busy setting up the dummy. He led the club 10 and let it lose, won the returned trump in dummy, ruffed a diamond, setting up the rest of that suit, then took the heart Q, heart K and then ran dummy's diamonds, clubs and spade A, making five-odd.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

After West takes two clubs, East two hearts, and East returns the spade 8, how should South play for his wild contract of 3-No Trumps?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Feb. 8

Commotion, excitement sudden change or disruption prevail on this day, according to a very interesting, if ambiguous, chain of planetary configurations. The mental forces and faculties will be pitched to high levels of inspiration, progressive ideas and brisk action, with the physical energies ready to jump into harness to put over brilliant programs. New projects, based on innovation and novelty, being pursued vigorously, diligently and decisively, may have aspects of disruption and devastation prior to attaining high objectives.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of definite accomplishment, possibly in new fields of enterprise and with side issues of disturbance, devastation and seeming disaster. But these are preliminary to uprooting old or static situations prior to rebuilding on modern and progressive foundations. Be prudent.

A child born on this day may be forceful, ingenious, keen and original in thought and audacious in action. It may have great initiative in new and progressive lines.

Bird Banding, Sparrows of Interest to Audubon Club

"BIRD BANDING" was the subject of the paper given by Mrs. H. C. McCutchan yesterday when Mrs. W. R. Hainer, 62 Bartley avenue, entertained members of the Audubon club. The first bird banding was done by Audubon in 1803 to find out whether birds return year after year to the same area. The hobby increased in popularity until 1920 when the United States Biological Survey took over the work.

It is against the law to band birds now without a permit, and only those who are qualified are issued permits. At present there are 400,000 birds banded in the United States and Canada. Records are kept in the department in Washington of speed of flight, migration routes and destinations. This information is used by aeronautical engineers.

Miss Josephine Doolittle gave the other paper which dealt with "The White-Crowned Sparrow." She named him the aristocrat of the sparrow family. He winters in the valley of Mexico, and summers in Labrador. His migrant period is in the spring, and he passes this part of the country in May. His song is similar to that of the meadowlark.

The next meeting of the club will be held March 5 with Mrs. S. A. Richardson, 124 Carpenter road. Mrs. Hugh Clark will have the paper on "Kites" and Mrs. Henry Paulson will talk on the "Field Sparrow."

With MARIANNE

IT DOESN'T really matter whether you're going south for a vacation soon, you've just returned from a sunny clime, or you merely want to rejuvenate your winter face, you'll be more than pleased with the new "Rico Red" make-up. . . . It's been introduced recently by a leading woman manufacturer of cosmetics—the powder is a dark rose-tan shade, while the rouge and lipstick are bright red. . . . The entire ensemble is just the thing for sun-tanned complexions or for a pleasant change of coloring to wear with the soft grays that are going to be so popular this spring.

Have you seen the clever Valentine packages that are on display in the downtown stores now for that special day next week? A French perfumer has tied up his most popular colognes in pale blue paper (figured with gay silhouettes, arrows and red hearts) and red satin ribbon for the occasion—and there's even a sentimental little card attached to bear the greetings of the day. . . . Now if you want to keep your Valentine guessing, you might send him (or her, as the case may be) one of those shower balls in the shape of a heart which has "My heart belongs to ?" printed in rose letters on the top. . . . Another cute package has a big red heart on the top with a verse to the effect that if the receiver doesn't care for the sender, he need only to open the box to see where he'll be—and what do you think is inside? A black eight-ball, which is really nothing more than a shower ball!

* * *

There's a grand new lipstick on the market just now, which has been made by a prominent nail polish house to harmonize with the shades of polish manufactured by the company. . . . The streamlined blue and silver cases contain shades ranging from Shy, a light rose to be worn with pastels, to Chilibean and Mahogany, which are dark rust and red hues. . . . These can be purchased separately, or in gay little silk purse pouches along with the nail polish. . . . The pouches come in navy and red, coral and aqua, black and fuchsia combinations.

* * *

ANOTHER new—and entirely different make-up, designed by a New York cosmetologist, is Telecaste Red for blonds and brunettes. This make-up was orginally brought out to be worn by participants in television broadcasts, but it met with such widespread approval that it now has been introduced for popular use. It's dark and different, so perhaps you'd better have a look at it the very next time you're downtown shopping.

* * *

Speaking of soap, as we were a few paragraphs back, Pinocchio, and all the other characters of Walt Disney's new movie have taken form in soap to delight old and young alike. . . . These colorful little figures can be purchased individually, or in "volumes" containing several. . . . Incidentally, next to Pinocchio himself, one of the cutest of all these is Cleo, the fish—a bright orange bath ball with soulful blue eyes. . . . Other novelties in wrist and bath balls are gardenia, pine and carnation, which come in white, green and red with the respective flowers on the front as well as some with perky little faces painted on them. . . . Blue spruce soap is nice too, and something else new along this line is soap in the shape and scent of almonds with tiny gold leaves for a colorful touch.

* * *

IF YOUR HAIR is suffering from the continuous wear of hats this winter, as well as lack of sunshine, you can give it new highlights and life by using a fine new soapless oil shampoo and Blue Grass brilliantine which doesn't make the hair greasy, but instead gives a desirable luster. . . . And a good remedy for rough, grimy hands is a thorough scrubbing with one of those new hand brushes and the use of a soothing hand cream—one of the finest of these comes in a tube and leaves a fine protective film on the hands, without being a bit sticky.

NEW ZEALAND TOPIC FOR STUDY AT CLUB

Miss Grace Courtney, Mrs. O. G. Place Give Papers Before Sorosis; Plan Washington Birthday Luncheon.

MISS BERTHA PATTERSON was hostess to the Mansfield Sorosis last night when Miss Grace Courtney gave the paper of the evening on New Zealand. She stated that the islands had developed since the 19th century into a land of unsurpassed beauty and splendor. In area the two island bodies are about the size of the state of Colorado.

The Fiordland of New Zealand is the national beauty spot, having been called the Switzerland of the Pacific. It consists of 200 miles of solid granite wall with volcanos, waterfalls and gysers. The country abounds in mineral springs and health resorts.

New Zealand is one of the most wide-awake and prosperous of countries, the speaker stated, with no illiteracy. She was the first to give women the vote, set up a state department of public health, establish a minimum wage for women and minors, grade food products, and arrange for old-age pensions.

The second paper of the evening was given by Mrs. O. G. Place on Mohican State park. The park was first used by the Indians, and later a Delaware village was established. It was made into a park in 1928, and now there are over 240,000 trees in the park which is one of the 12 state parks in Ohio.

At the close of the meeting roll call was answered with "beauty spots in Ohio." The next meeting will be the annual Washington's birthday party.
